COMPLICATED AFFAIR — This drawing of layout of the interchange to be constructed where Highway 101 meets State Route 37 north of Hamilton Air Force Base was released today by the State Division of Highways. Bids on the project, expected to cost four million dollars and take over a year to complete, will be opened Wednesday in Sacramento.

$4 Million Freeway Link At Black Point Due In Spring

The California Division of Highways will open bids Wednesday in Sacramento on a complicated traffic interchange for the junction of Highway 101 and State Route 37 (the Black Point Cutoff).

The interchange, expected to cost four million dollars, includes two overcrossings and three structures to carry traffic over the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks. Frontage roads will serve Ignacio residential subdivisions and businesses near Hamilton Air Force Base. With the 2.7 miles of freeway between Entrada Drive and Marinwood, for which bids were opened Dec. 12, this will extend the Highway 101 freeway to Novato.

All traffic signals between the Golden Gate Bridge and Novato will be eliminated when these facilities are completed, the division of highways announced today.

Three hundred working days have been allocated to the interchange project. The division of highways hopes construction will start next spring and be completed in the summer of 1964, said J. P. Sinclair, assistant state highway engineer in San Francisco.

The Highway 101-Black Point cutoff intersection has long been a major traffic bottleneck. Sinclair said hopefully: "Construction of an interchange at this major intersection will alleviate the traffic

ANTHONY ANSELMO
Elevated to chairman

Marinite New Welfare Unit Head

Anthony Anselmo of Santa Venetia, labor leader and college lecturer, was named chairman of the state welfare study commission yesterday by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

As chairman, Anselmo succeeds Judge Winslow Christian, who was appointed state health and welfare administrator. Anselmo has been a public representative on the commission. Anselmo, 58, is executive secretary of the San Francisco local joint board of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union. He is a guest lecturer and part-time teacher of labor relations at both San Francisco City College and University of San Francisco.

He and his wife, Madeline, reside at 80 Meriam Drive. They are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Toni Miralles of Sacramento and Mrs. Jean Johnson of San Rafael.

To fill the vacancy on the commission left by Judge Christian's resignation, Governor Brown appointed Judge Jack Halpin of Shasta County Superior Court. He noted that the law required appointment of a superior court judge to the commission.

Man Hurt In Fall At Building Project

Aubrey C. Schnaitacher, 49, of Oakland was treated at San Rafael General Hospital yesterday for fractures of ribs and collar bone after falling 12 feet onto cement at an apartment project at 225 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, at 4 p.m., according to police.

Schnaitacher fell from a loose plank while taking measurements and making estimates. He is salesman-engineer for Golden State Shower Door Co. of Oakland.

MERCURY DIPS TO 12

Pipes Freeze In Lagunitas

The mercury dropped to a shivering 12 degrees in Marin County early today as one of the coldest winters in recent history gripped California.

"All our pipes are frozen solid," Mrs. Joseph Kortuem of Lagunitas said today. She reported the thermometer at her house registered 12 degrees at 9 a.m.

"We've lived here 18 years and this is the first time the pipes have frozen. We don't have any water," she said. She and her husband live at Spring and Maple avenues. She reported her neighbors were in the same fix this morning: no water.

Novato's lowest temperature of the winter was registered at the main fire station at 22 degrees. The low temperature was 25 in Woodacre, 27 in Tamalpais Valley, 28 in Marinwood, 31 in San Anselmo, 32 in Point Reyes Station, 33 in San Rafael, and 34 in Mill Valley.

At 8 a.m. the temperature in Ross was 29, in Fairfax, 30, and in Sausalito, 38. Fireman Frank Christ reported that water froze on a fire truck as he was washing it in Sausalito, despite the 38-degree minimum reported.

The Weather Bureau forecast more clear, cold weather tomorrow.

In Needles, usually the hottest spot in the state, the low temperature was 28.

United Press International

reports most of the nation suffered today under a winter onslaught which whipped the north with blizzard snows and threatened to wipe out millions of dollars worth of crops along the lush Rio Grande.

The huge arctic blast plunged the temperature to 56 below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont., and 50 below at Laramie, Wyo. Roof-ripping winds tore at the southland. An ice storm pelted New England and the middle Atlantic states.

The toll of dead in winter's latest attack mounted to 14. They included five persons, three of them children, who died in a flaming cabin at Bonanza, Utah. The blaze was blamed on a stove which was overheated to keep out 20-below cold.

Colorado reported five weather fatalities and there was one apiece in Kansas, South Dakota, Nevada and Illinois.

In dollars and cents, the Rio Grande Valley was threatened with the worst punishment. From a high of 95 at Hargill yesterday, the mercury tumbled 65 degrees in a matter of hours and a hard freeze to-night threatened ruin for the valley's multi-million citrus and vegetable crop.

The Rio Grande "norther" came almost one year to the date after a disastrous cold spell wiped out 50 million dollars.

U.S.-Russian Test Ban Talk Opens Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Russia will open talks in New York Monday on a nuclear test ban and disarmament amid cautious U. S. optimism that some progress may be possible, it was announced today.

The State Department said that following recent talks between U. S. and Soviet officials: "It is believed that further discussions in the United States on the issues of nuclear testing and disarmament might be useful."

SPECULATION

There has been some speculation that Russia has been revising its position on a nuclear test ban since the Cuban missile crisis. There have been some signs of a modification in the Soviet opposition to on-site inspection against cheating.

Perhaps with these developments in mind, American officials voiced very cautious optimism that prospects for an agreement to end nuclear testing might be enhanced during the New York talks at headquarters of the U.N. Soviet mission.

MORE TALKS

The State Department announcement came as Secretary of State Dean Rusk said he also looked for more talks with Russia this year on the Berlin situation.

Rusk, appearing on a filmed television program, said some Moscow officials seem to regard the Berlin situation as of interest only to West Germany. He emphasized that it is of vital interest to all the Western allies.

Sitting in on the talks in New York will be William C. Foster, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency; Nikolai Fedorenko, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, and Semyon K. Tsarapkin, Russia's disarmament negotiator at Geneva.

The State Department hoped the meeting would help prepare for resumption of the 17-nation Geneva disarmament conference on Feb. 15.

Moratorium Asked On State Rates For Nursing Homes

Northern California's nursing home representatives yesterday adopted two resolutions asking for a moratorium on the state's $219 monthly rate for welfare patients and a new survey of care costs under the Medical Assistance for the Aged program.

Representatives from Marin County, where welfare patients will have nowhere to go unless adequate state payments are made for their care, took the lead in the fight for a new rate study.

The county must close its Lucas Valley hospital in April and place the aged welfare patients in private nursing homes. Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy, who is going to resign as county medical director and operate a nursing home which he is now building, had agreed to take county patients at $350 per month. But he has told the Board of Supervisors he could not take them at $219, the new state-imposed limit.

Yesterday's action by the nursing home association was taken by 125 chapter representatives at an emergency meeting in San Francisco, said James E. Moore, administrator of Center Medical Hospital in San Rafael.

The first resolution asks that a State Department of Finance cost study of 80 nursing homes be set aside, and that a new study be made by a group "which would include fair and equitable representation of all types of nursing homes," with personnel from the nursing home profession on the study committee.

The second resolution asks that the rate structure evolved from the state's study be abandoned pending completion of a new survey, and that rate structures and patient classifications in effect in various counties on Dec. 31 be maintained in the interim. Also requested is a provision that individual counties may negotiate for higher rates than those set by the state.

Copies of the resolutions are to be sent to state legislators, the governor, county and state welfare heads and county supervisors, Moore said.

Corte Madera Post Office '2 Years Off'

Corte Madera will get no new post office for at least two years, it was learned reliably today.

A source in the Post Office Department disclosed to the Independent-Journal that negotiations have been opened for a new lease on the present Corte Madera Post Office at 11 First Street, and for an adjoining vacant store which would add 450 square feet to its space.

Plans for a new post office in the Corte Madera Shopping Center have been scrapped because of turn-downs by the town council and planning commission.

The Post Office Department last month awarded Frank Rusaleim, shopping center owner, a contract to build a new $95,000 post office on the center property. It would have been more than twice the size of the present 1,850-square foot post office.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission, however, voted

Report Says Meredith May Re-Enter Negro College

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The Memphis Commercial Appeal said today that James H. Meredith may be planning to re-enter Jackson State College, the Negro school from which he transferred to the University of Mississippi last fall. But Meredith called the report "inaccurate."

The Commercial Appeal said sources indicated that Meredith had applied for a telephone at an apartment near Jackson State and might skip next week's semester examinations at Ole Miss.

Meredith said Monday he would not register at Ole Miss next term unless the atmosphere became "more conducive to learning." But he has repeatedly said he has made no plans for next term.

The 29-year-old Negro, whose entry at Ole Miss sparked a month-long crisis, was spending the weekend on campus here, studying for examinations.

Meanwhile, university authorities suspended one student and warned against more student demonstrations protesting Meredith's presence on campus.

Navy Launches Polaris

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The Navy launched today its 16th Polaris-firing submarine, the Nathan Hale, designed to throw a nuclear-tipped missile 2,500 miles.

The nuclear-powered, 6,277-ton ship is equipped to fire the Polaris A-3 missile, now being developed.

As the Hale slid into the Thames River, the Navy had its 17th Polaris submarine, the John Adams, ready for launching a couple of hours later at Portsmouth, N.H.

In naming the Hale, the Navy honored the 21-year-old Connecticut-born schoolmaster who was hanged by the British in 1776 for spying and whose words adorn many a history book: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Rail Strike Called

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen today called a strike against the Southern Railway Co., effective at 6:30 a.m. (EST) Sunday.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the AFL-CIO union, said firemen and enginemen will walk off their jobs because the railroad has violated contract provisions on mileage and vacations since July, 1959.

A spokesman for the company, with headquarters here, declined comment. The 8,100-mile Southern Railway system spans the South, operating in 14 states and the District of Columbia.

Consumer Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Consumer Counsel Helen Nelson of Mill Valley has asked the legislature to reduce the maximum allowable interest rate on charge accounts in California from 18 to 12 per cent.

Mrs. Nelson's proposal would amend the Unruh Act, which prohibits interest rates above 18 per cent.

The consumer counsel said the present law is based on reasoning developed in depression days, when wage earners were not considered good risks.

"WHERE SERVICE IS A MATTER OF PRIDE"

Baby Is Shot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 14-month-old girl was hit in the right foot by a bullet during an exchange of gunfire between a gunman and four policemen last night.

Jane Mahurin was reported in good condition at Mission Emergency Hospital after the .25-caliber bullet was removed from her foot.

Willie Smith, 39, of East Palo Alto, identified as the gunman, was in serious condition with two bullet wounds.

The shooting took place in the apartment of the child's mother, Mrs. Louisa Jane Mahurin, a friend of Smith.

Detective Dick Castro said the baby was hit when he and Smith were scuffling. After Smith's gun went off, Castro said, his own revolver accidentally fired, hitting Smith in the hand.

Motorcycle policeman Jack Miller said he shot Smith in the knee and hit him over the head.

Smith was booked on a charge of attempted murder.

Shoots Stepfather

PALO ALTO (AP)—A youngster stopped a family fight here yesterday by shooting his stepfather in the stomach with a load of birdshot, police reported today.

"I knew it wouldn't hurt him much," police quoted Kenneth D. Schler, 17, as saying. Unemployed bartender John Millard Iddings, 38, was listed in satisfactory condition at Santa Clara Hospital in San Jose.

Police said Iddings was beating his wife, Dorothy, 42, over $25 unemployment compensation she refused to give him, the youth said.

The boy was booked for assault with a deadly weapon.

'Thrill Gang' Guilty

VISALIA (AP)—Two members of a Los Angeles "thrill-gang," which preyed on servicemen hitch-hiking along the California Coast, were condemned to death by a Visalia jury last night.

Ronald Polk and George Gregg, each 23, were convicted of the first-degree murder of a Norwalk, Calif., sailor, William Fambro, 20.

Fambro's mutilated and bullet-riddled body was found outside Porterville a few hours after being dumped from a car on March 31.

Plane From Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—An airliner bringing ransom medical supplies to Cuba will return to the United States tomorrow with 100 Americans aboard, a Swiss diplomat says.

The plane was due to leave for Havana from Miami, Fla., yesterday, he said, but the flight was delayed to give the repatriates time to prepare for the trip.

Father Gets Child

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A superior judge yesterday awarded custody of 6-year-old child actress Diane Gardner to her father, David Wayland, 32, saying the girl needed "a stable home."

Judge Bernard S. Jefferson ruled, however, that Diane's mother, Mrs. Barbara Gardner, 29, may visit the child twice a week, but cannot bring her present husband, Roy Gardner.

Diane appeared opposite Jackie Gleason in the movie, "Gigot."

Modest Income Tax Cut Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional sources expect President John F. Kennedy to propose a relatively modest income tax cut effective July 1, to be followed by a second reduction next year. The two-stage reduction, they said, will add up to about 10 billion dollars.

This would be offset to a still-unknown extent by eliminating or modifying some of the present exemptions and special treatment of income.

The tax message Kennedy has said he will send Congress late this month is expected to anticipate increased deficits for a year or two, but to argue that spending and investment stimulated by a tax cut would soon increase revenues enough to take up the slack.

General outlines of the proposals may be included in Kennedy's State of the Union message Monday and the budget submitted Thursday.

(The State of the Union message is to be broadcast Monday at 9:30 a.m. by San Francisco radio station KCBS.)

As for the chances that Congress will enact the presidential program, one source put it this way:

"All that is certain is that there is no chance of a tax cut effective any earlier than July 1. There is some chance that a bill could be passed during the year and the effective date set back to July 1."

He said it would be a major accomplishment for both houses to complete hearings, bill writing and floor action on a measure as complicated as a revenue code revision by the time Congress adjourns in the fall.

And even then, leaders like Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) of the House Ways and Means Committee would have to overcome their objections to any retroactive feature if the tax savings were to apply to income received as early as July 1.

Kennedy has abandoned his earlier suggestion that the cut be backdated to Jan. 1, 1963.

A source ordinarily posted on administration plans said he does not know of any final decision on details, but that the July 1 date, the general size of the proposed cut and the principle that rate reductions would have to be partly compensated for by taxing more income appeared fairly well fixed.

U.S. 'COPTER CREW DIES IN VIET NAM

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The bodies of seven U.S. Army helicopter crewmen were recovered today from the wreckage of an H-21 troop carrier in which they died on a small island in the Mekong River delta.

Communist ground fire, originally suspected, was virtually ruled out as the cause of the crash last night.

The troop carrier was returning home with two other helicopters when it went down. The pilot was reported to have been having trouble with the controls. The craft suddenly flipped on its back, then fell 2,500 feet, tumbling end over end. The wreckage hit on the island 55 miles southeast of Saigon.

All seven occupants, identified as helicopter crewmen from the 57th and 93rd Companies, were killed on impact. The wreckage did not burn.

This was one of four H-21s forced down for mechanical reasons within 24 hours. The other three were not seriously damaged.

The latest crash was the 16th U.S. helicopter destroyed in South Viet Nam, and brought the toll of Americans killed in helicopters to 23. The total number of American servicemen killed by all causes since the military buildup began rose to 53.

Russell Lewises Return Home From Hawaiian Islands

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lewis of Sausalito have just returned from a trip to Hawaii.

They left by plane Dec. 21 and visited all of the islands. Among the highlights of the vacation, according to Mrs. Lewis, was the coast of Kona, where there was a recent lava flow. It was the most colorful of the islands in their opinion and the most peaceful. Another memorable experience was a violent storm which hit Kauai and held up their return to Honolulu.

All Faith Attack On Segregation

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Organized religion thus far has played a relatively minor role in the struggle for racial justice in America.

Religious leaders acknowledge this fact, and find it humiliating.

Next week, in Chicago, they will try to make amends. Representatives of 70 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish organizations will meet at the Edgewater Beach Hotel Monday through Thursday for a "National Conference on Religion and Race."

This conference is significant for two reasons:

1. It is the most ambitious attempt yet to galvanize America's religious bodies into effective action on racial problems.

2. It is the first national meeting which has ever been called in the United States under the joint sponsorship of all three major faiths.

Conveners of the conference are the National Council of Churches, the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and the Synagogue Council of America.

A distinguished Negro educator, Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., will serve as chairman.

It is anticipated that the 800 delegates will adopt a "statement of conscience" detailing the reasons why they regard the elimination of segregation as one of the supreme moral challenges facing Americans in this generation.

As a joint expression of conviction by Protestants, Catholics and Jews, such a statement may carry some weight. But the organizers of the conference realize that racial barriers cannot be battered down with moral arguments addressed to the general public.

The real business of the four-day meeting will be drafting a series of recommendations for action by religious organizations, including local churches and synagogues.

Mathew Ahmann, executive secretary of the conference, said the recommendations will be specific and down-to-earth. They will spell out concrete things that Christians and Jews can do, together or separately, to combat racial discrimination in such areas as housing, employment, education and worship.

A "follow-up committee" has been organized to insure that the ideas generated at the national conference are widely disseminated to religious groups at the state and community level.

How much action they will stimulate remains to be seen.

Catholic Unity Meetings To Cover Range Of Topics

A program of eight evening meetings for all faiths of Marin County will begin Friday at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael.

Theme of the program is "That All May Be One." Msgr. Daniel McAlister, pastor of St. Raphael's, said.

The church has called the sessions in response to the growing need for Christian unity. The meetings will be modeled after the pattern established in 1908 by Rev. Paul James Francis of the Society of Atonement. He called the program a Chair of Unity Octave in honor of the chair of St. Peter in Rome.

The octave (series of eight meetings) will be at 8 p.m. at the church Friday through Jan. 25. Each meeting will be followed by a social hour in which there will be an opportunity for discussion.

The program and the lecturing priests are:

Friday—"Christianity at the Crossroads," Rev. Frank Norris, professor of dogmatic theology at St. Patrick's Seminary, author of book, "God's Own People," columnist for "The Monitor," known lecturer and expert on Protestant-Catholic relations.

Jan. 19—"God's Own People," Rev. John Shanahan, lecturer and assistant pastor of St. Robert's Church in San Bruno, member of the interfaith panel on the local television program, "Problems, Please."

Jan. 20—"Kingdom of Priests," Rev. Manuel Costa, auditor for the Diocese of Santa Rosa, assistant pastor of St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa.

Jan. 21—"A Purchased People," Rev. David Pettingill, teacher at Marin Catholic High School and assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Larkspur.

Jan. 22—"God Speaks," Rev. James O'Shaughnessy, Newman Club chaplain at the College of San Mateo and assistant pastor at St. Bartholomew's Church in San Mateo.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifford of San Rafael are general chairmen of the event, working under the direction of Monsignor McAlister and Rev. John Petroni, assistant pastor of St. Raphael's.

Over 200 men and women of the parish are delivering 3,000 brochure invitations, door-to-door. This contact group, under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, is working through parish apostolic groups. A Move For Novato Presbyterians

The oldest Protestant church in Novato is about to move into the city's newest building.

The 525 members of the Novato Presbyterian Church, who have been bulging the timbers at the old building at 901 Sherman Avenue, will find plenty of elbow room in the new, two-story building at the southwest edge of town on Wilson Avenue.

"We're really out in the country now," Rev. C. M. Croughan, pastor for the past 1½ years, said. "Look there."

He stood on the landing of one of the outer stairways of the new building, pointing to the rear of the lot where a large, sleek doe was walking leisurely across the property.

The pastor smiled and continued the tour of the $13,- 000 classroom building that will serve all functions of the church until other units are added.

A chapel, social hall, administration building, and sanctuary are planned later on the three-and-three on ET on the 3¼-acre property.

San Rafael architect Gordon A. Phillips designed the new building. Robert S. Miller of San Rafael is contractor.

The Presbyterian church was established in Novato in 1896. Although it will be in brand new quarters, there is still a reminder of dignity and age on the property. It is a live oak which towers above the two-story building.

"They say it's about 500 years old," the pastor said.

Marin Baha'i Assembly To Pray For 3 Sentenced To Death In Morocco

The Baha'i of San Rafael will hold a special prayer meeting at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday for three of their co-religionists in Nador, Morocco, who were recently sentenced to death. Five others were sentenced to life imprisonment and another faces a 15-year prison term at hard labor.

The meeting will take place at Mrs. Vina Allen's home, 280 Fairhills Drive, San Rafael.

"The condemned men," Gordon Burke, vice-chairman of the Baha'i local spiritual assembly said, "were to be executed on Dec. 25th, but they are still alive."

"Fortunately, the Moroccan Supreme Court decided to re-examine the case against the condemned men," Burke said.

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU

"TEACH US TO PRAY"

To paraphrase a popular advertising slogan, "If you're not using prayer, you're working too hard." Prayer changes things—if you know how to pray. More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of—but only when the universal laws that govern answered prayer are fulfilled. The Disciples realizing that successful prayer wasn't what they had thought it was, asked of Jesus who was getting results, "teach us to pray."

Scanlon Plans Boxing Comeback; Giant Ticket Agency In Marin?

Whatever happened to Bobby Scanlon, the former high-ranked lightweight box-fighter?

Glad you asked, for I have a clipping here from the Sacramento Union, telling that Irish Bobby, now a Sacramento resident, is back in the good graces of the State Athletic Commission and determined to rise again to the fistic stardom he enjoyed several years ago when he was considered a possible world title contender.

Scanlon had his license suspended last October—for the second time—because of eye trouble, but regained it recently when a new eye exam found him fit. However, the commissioners ordered Bobby to keep in tip-top shape, or by-bye license again.

Scanlon is being trained by an Air Force master sergeant named Don MacBriar who may have bitten more than he can chew. Despite his angelic appearance, Scanlon has been noted for his love of bright lights and late hours. Keeping track of him was a 24-hour-a-day job for his former Marin managers, restaurateurs Nick Kobseff and Lu Sabella.

AFTER SEVERAL months of frustrating experience, Sabella threw in the sponge and Kobseff finally managed to sell the contract—at a loss.

Now, the boxer with the choir-boy looks vows he's a changed man.

"I've let a lot of people down in the past," he was quoted as saying the other day. "Now that the commission will allow me to fight, I'm determined to prove myself. I still think I have ability and I want to work toward a fight for the title. I'm going to put boxing, not other things, first."

Sacramentans feel the 27-year-old Scanlon could still become a title contender and give their town's boxing picture a desperately needed shot in the arm.

So much for Scanlon.

THE S.F. GIANTS are seriously thinking of establishing a ticket agency in San Rafael, which would be a blessing for the thousands of Marin fans who trek to Candlestick. Come on Horace, don't just sit there and think about it; do it!

MARIN ROD and Gun Club's annual stag banquet, held for the past several years at Bermuda Palms Hotel, San Rafael, has been moved to the MRGC clubhouse at Pt. San Quentin. It's scheduled Jan. 26.

The clubhouse can accommodate 450 persons for dinner—a few hundred less than Bermuda Palms—but by serving their own booze and food and pocketing the profits the MRGC figures to do okay financially with the smaller attendance.

VINCE Correnti, a long-time friend who hopes to become one of Eddie Machen's new managers, is a resident of Corte Madera.

Correnti, a car wash operator in S.F., said the mentally-ill heavy-weight contender "is not far away from being released" from the hospital because he no longer appears nervous and has a new drive and determination to continue boxing. Correnti also said Machen's home in Portland will be sold and his family will move to the San Francisco area, possibly in Marin.

Baker Leads Beavers Over Stanford, 65-58

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stanford is convinced: The Indians met Terry Baker Friday night in their own gym and the Oregon State all-verything led the Beavers to a 65-58 victory.

While Stanford was watching 7-foot Mel Counts, football All-America Baker scored 25 points. Counts collected only 10. Stanford star center Tom Dose was held to 9 points while teammate Don Clemetson scored 21.

The Indians get another look tonight when the two teams meet in a rematch. This is a non-conference basketball contest, but there are some interesting Big Six and West Coast Athletic Conference games elsewhere.

Southern California meets Washington in a Big Six rematch. USC won Friday, 64-61, stalling for the triumph in Los Angeles. UCLA plays cousin California in another Los Angeles showdown.

St. Mary's and Santa Clara moved to the top of the WCAC with Friday night victories.

St. Mary's handled San Jose, 56-50. San Jose meets Loyola of Los Angeles tonight. Loyola was defeated, 86-76, by Santa Clara Friday.

The University of San Francisco plays at home against the University of Pacific in the other WCAC game.

Drake Upsets San Rafael In Overtime

The Drake Pirates scored a 45-44 upset victory over the San Rafael High School Bulldogs in an overtime Marin Athletic League cage opener on the San Rafael courts last night.

The Pirates were trailing at halftime 25-20, but pulled up and tied the Bulldogs 41-41 in the closing seconds of the game.

Ball control was the difference in the game as San Rafael threw the ball away 11 times to only three for Drake. The Bulldogs also outrebounded the Drake cagers 26-24. Larry Gaddy hauling in nine for Drake and Rod Monti grabbing eight for San Rafael.

The Pirates broke the full court press engaged by San Rafael in the opening minutes of the game and forced some San Rafael mistakes. Drake coach Carl Brown praised his entire team for the fine defensive work in snatching the ball from San Rafael and forcing bad passes.

With the score knotted at 41-41 at the end of regulation play, Monti of San Rafael sunk a free throw to give the Bulldogs a one-point advantage.

But Drake's Curt Jensen came back with a key bucket to give Drake a one-point bulge.

With only seconds left, Drake guard Lorry Galassi was fouled. He calmly walked up to the free throw line and pushed in both free tosses, putting Drake ahead by three.

San Rafael brought the ball out and Drake wisely allowed Monti to drive in for the bucket as only eight seconds remained on the clock. Drake held on to the ball as the final horn sounded.

Drake took 50 shots from the floor and made 18 for 36 per cent, as the Bulldogs made 16 out of 48 for 33 per cent. San Rafael could only manage four field goals out of 20 attempts in the second half for 20 per cent.

Drake had three men break into the double figures as Gaddy hit for 13, Galassi scored 12 and John McBride 11 points.

Indians Breeze In 51-36 Game; 42 Fouls Called

The powerful Tamalpais Indians walloped the Redwood High School Giants 51-36 last night in an opening Marin Athletic League basketball game in the Redwood gym.

It was a real rough game as 42 fouls were committed, 25 by Redwood and 17 by Tam. Tam converted the fouls into 19 points and Redwood scored 14 points from the free-throw line.

The Indians were led by their two guards, Art Ford who scored 15 points and Warren Domino who scored 13 digits. Their big center, Art Foster, was held to 7 points by Redwood center Hillard Witt, who was the Giants' high man with 12 points.

CLEARs BENCH

Tam coach Ed Chavez cleared his bench in the final quarter as the Indians were making it a rout. Ford scored 13 of his 15 points in the first half and was used sparingly in the final half.

Domino, besides scoring heavily for Tam, played outstandingly on defense. He scored five of his points in the first half and eight in the second half.

The Tam B team won its game over the Redwood lightweights, 36-27, but the Redwood junior varsity whipped Tam javees 51-41 as Redwood's Joel Tobiasson and Bill Crosley each hit for 10 points.

FLYWEIGHT BOXER MAKES RING HISTORY

BANGKOK Thailand (UPI)—Slender little Pone Kingpetch of Thailand became the first man in ring history to recapture the world flyweight championship today when he won a 15-round decision over Masahiko (Fighting) Harada of Japan.

Kingpetch, 26, outpointed the 19-year-old Harada in their return title fight before a jammed crowd of 20,000 in the National Stadium Gymnasium, and avenged Harada's 11th-round knockout victory in their first fight last Oct. 10, at Tokyo.

It was the first time anyone had regained the 112-pound title in its 53-year history.

ALL-STAR PRO CONTEST ON TV TOMORROW

LOS ANGELES, (UPI)—The top stars of the National football League as selected by their coaches get in their final football fling tomorrow in the 13th annual All-Star Pro Bowl game between the Eastern and Western conferences.

The favored Western squad selected John Unites of Baltimore as offensive captain and Joe Schmidt of the Detroit Lions as defensive captain. For the East, Y. A. Tittle of New York will captain the offense and Bob Gain of Cleveland will head the defense.

The kickoff is scheduled for 1 p.m. PST and the game is being televised nationally (NBC) but is blacked out in the Los Angeles area.

Small Crowd Sees Lakers Defeat S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO, (UPI)—Losers at the box office as well as on the floor, the San Francisco Warriors try again tonight when they face the Los Angeles Lakers in the L.A.'s home arena where the attendance should be a lot more than 4,203.

That was the count at the Cow Palace last night where the pace-setting Lakers overhauled the Warriors 134-129 and posted their eight straight NBA victory while knocking off San Francisco for the sixth time.

Wilt Chamberlain squandered 67 points in a lost cause.

"You can't bring in the customers when you're getting beaten," Eddie Gottlieb, the glum general manager of the Warriors said afterward. His club has lost five of its last six games.

Marin Catholic Edges Petaluma

The Marin Catholic Wildcats edged Petaluma High School 59-57 in a practice basketball game last night in the Wildcats' gym.

Leading scorers for Marin Catholic were Phil Ferris with 13, Redding with 12 and Ron O'Connell with 10. Seniors O'Connell and Paul Gockel fouled out, forcing the Wildcats to win the game with an all-junior lineup.

The Marin Catholic B team won the game 33-32, Bill Shine scoring 11 points, and the javees of M.C. won, 27-19, Brad McDonald scoring 13.

Hornets Barely Win As Willard Hits 28 Points

In a high scoring Marin Athletic League cage opener, the Novato Hornets edged the Trojans of Terra Linda High School 60-59 last night in the winners' gym.

Novato's Nick Willard led the scorers for the night as the red-hot cager hit for 28 points. Ten of his digits came in the last quarter.

Novato was leading the Trojans 60-57 with only six seconds left when Terra Linda center Bob King sank a jump shot to put the Trojans within one point of the Hornets, but the time was up.

Don Dreusike and Jim Kane were the high men for Terra Linda as each hit for 19 points. Dreusike hit 13 the first half and 6 during the second half. Kane scored 9 in the first half and 10 in the final half.

FOUL TROUBLES

The Trojans had their troubles in the fouling department as Dreusike and Jim Dalton fouled out and Kane and Don Knotts each had four fouls.

All these fouls allowed Novato to score 18 points from the free throw line to only 7 for Terra Linda. That was the difference between winning and losing.

The Novato B team whipped the junior Trojans 49-29 as Bob Phillips scored 22 points for Novato.

Terra Linda 18 16 14 11—59
Novato 10 16 13 16—60
Scoring: Terra Linda—Don Knotts, 1-1-3; Bob Cooney, 3-0-6; Don Dreusike, 8-3-19; Jim Dalton, 3-1-7; Bob King, 2-1-5; Jim Kane, 9-1-19. Novato—Bob Nichols, 3-1-7; Dave Ralph, 2-2-6; Ken Beade, 0-3-3; Barry Hackmyer, 1-4-8; Arnold Schuch, 2-6-10; Nick Willard 13-2-28.

Seals Face Buckaroos

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The two most shot-happy teams in the Western Hockey League will square off today and tomorrow when the Southern Division leading Portland Buckaroos face the host San Francisco Seals.

San Francisco has fired 1,004 times at enemy nets in the season's first 31 games and has scored the most goals in the league, 119, or one goal for every 8.4 shots.

Tars Romp In Opener Of League

College of Marin's fast-breaking Tars sped past Siskiyou College 90-71 last night in the opening of the Golden Valley Conference basketball race but expect a much tougher time tonight when they take on highly-regarded Shasta College at the Redwood High School gym.

Led by Dave Neumann's 28-point performance, the Tars unleashed their best offensive show of the season last night, connecting on 45 per cent of their floor shots with four players hitting in double figures.

Neumann, former Redwood High ace, was impressive on drive-in shots off a weave offense. "After facing such tough teams in our pre-league schedule, Siskiyou's defense was comparatively easy for us," said Coach Cal Riemcke. He referred to tournament games in Southern California where the Tars met some of the state's top junior college quintets.

ALL THE WAY

Marin led all the way and enjoyed a 46-38 halftime advantage as Randy Petrini and Charlie Bullock assisted Neumann in the scoring parade. Each wound up with 17 points and Jim Wylie followed with 10.

Other Tar scorers were Steve Bryant six, Dave Scott five, Bob Nehls four and Pete Bardea three.

Petrini, at 6-2 the tallest Tar, led them in the rebound department while Riemcke cited Bryant for outstanding defensive play.

Of tonight's expected tough battle, Riemcke noted Shasta placed second in a recent Modesto Tournament and, along with Marin and Santa Rosa, is a top contender for the GVC crown.

"They're (Shasta) taller than us," added the Marin coach. "but we have better speed. It should be a close game. Tip-off time at the Redwood gym is 8 o'clock."

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

LOS ANGELES—Johnny Smith of Los Angeles, 157½, knocked out Gene Bryant of Tucson, Ariz., 161, in third round of scheduled 10-rounder.

MILAN, Italy—European flyweight champion Salvatore Buruni of Italy decisively Carlos Zavala of Holyoke, Mass., in 10-rounder. Buruni weighed 111½, Zavala 111½.

'JUST KIDDING'

Attempted 'Fix' In SC-Huskies Game

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles truck driver has been jailed on suspicion of offering a University of Washington basketball player $1,000 to throw a game with the University of Southern California.

But David Donahue, arrested last night outside the Sports Arena, says he was "just playing around" when he made the offer to Washington guard Larry Sharp.

But, under the law, making such an offer would be a crime whatever the intent. And Donahue, about 25, was booked on suspicion of offering a bribe to an athlete—a felony.

Sharp did not start for Washington last night but played about 20 minutes and scored one point. Southern California won the game 64-61.

Sharp said he left some tickets at a will-call window about an hour before the game and was walking away from the window when Donahue approached him and asked: "How about missing a few buckets for me tonight? ... Come on, now, you can miss three or four buckets tonight and I'll give you $500."

DOUBLES OFFER

Sharp said he told Donahue he wasn't interested. He said Donahue called to another man standing nearby, then turned back to Sharp and said: "We'll each give you $500."

Sharp went to his coach, John Grayson, and Grayson contacted Southern California Athletic Director Jess Hill. They went outside with an officer and found Donahue was still there. He was arrested.

Police said Donahue told them later: "I was just playing around. I told him I'd give him $1,000 to throw the game, but I was only kidding."

Player Holds A Precarious Lead

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Gary Player of South Africa fired his second straight 65 yesterday for a 130 total but held only a precarious one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the 72-hole San Diego Open.

Right behind him with 66-65-131 was Jack Cupit of Texas while tied at 132 were formidable Bill Casper Jr. and Fred Hawkins.

KEGLER BOWLS HIS AVERAGE: THREE TIMES

Jack Nau is a bowler who believes in bowling his average.

Nau, bowling in the Mixed Mates League at Greenbrae Lanes this week, rolled a series of three identical games: 155.

Rolling a triplicate in league competition is a feat in itself, but Nau added to the odds. You see, his Marin Blue Book average is 155.

The kegger will receive a Triplicate Award from the American Bowling Congress for his night's action.

Heavies On TV Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Daniels and Tony Alonti, two good, tall heavyweight prospects who have been beaten only once each—on cuts—meet tonight in a television 10-rounder at Sunnyside Garden.

Daniels, 25, a 6-foot-4 barber, is more advanced of the two. The belting Brooklynite is ranked seventh among the contenders by the World Boxing Assn. on his 17-1 record, including eight knockouts.

Billy's only defeat was to undefeated Cassius Clay in a television fight last May 10. Daniels was stopped in the seventh on cuts but not until he had twice rocked cocky Cassius with rights to the head. Clay had boasted that "Daniels will fall in seven." Daniels wasn't even floored.

Alonti, 23 and 6-foot-3, has a 29-1 record, including 17 knockouts.

The bout, starting at 7 p.m., DST, will be telecast by ABC.

If Hamilton Can Eliminate Traffic Deaths So Can We

In a letter in an adjacent column, the Air Force calls our attention to a fact of which it is proud and of which we also are proud.

It was not many years ago that the Independent-Journal was full of news stories about "Air Force Driver Killed in Crash" or "Hamilton Man Dies in Accident." It got so bad that local people expected to see the military involved whenever there was a crash. As a matter of fact we had visitation from Air Force officials asking us to play down their part in accidents.

In return, we suggested they do something to stop their involvement.

They said they had program under way which they believed would greatly reduce the number of accidents. They had many reasons for this, they pointed out, bad publicity being the least important. Indeed, the accidents were killing civilians and servicemen, disrupting military operations, and costing the government unnecessary tax expenditures for hospital and funeral expenses.

After the safety program got under way, the identification of Air Force men with accident stories did begin to decline—but not because we were censoring them out of the news. Their names still appear once in a while. But the impact of the adjacent letter is this:

No Hamilton Air Force Base man was killed in a traffic accident last year, Marin County's worst traffic death year. In fact no Hamilton man has died under those conditions in more than two years and four months.

We hope in calling this so forcefully to your attention that we will not jinx this fine record. We want to do it not merely to praise the Air Force for the success of its safety program, but to point out to civilian authorities that IT CAN BE DONE.

We wish that individuals and groups, organizations and firms would study the Air Defense Command's Life Saver Program and adapt its "defensive driving" techniques to their own operations.

We are sure the Air Force would cooperate unreservedly in any such civilian effort.

Try Belling The Cat

For a person to be a bird-lover and a cat fancier might seem to be a paradox. For it is part of a cat's nature to hunt birds. Yet the English, great pet lovers, are also the world's greatest bird watchers.

But for generations the English have put bells on cats to warn the birds. While cats are a bit out of our line, we do not see why a bell would not work if a cat becomes a notorious bird-killer. Most birds have keen hearing.

We recently heard of a Marin lady who had her cat destroyed because it brought her a quivering, half-alive bird. Perhaps she had never heard of putting a bell on the cat's collar.

If a cat is an excellent mouser, however, it might be well to overlook the gifts of a few sparrows in return for his exterminating service.

It's a jungle world we live in and most of use eat meat but try to forget the slaughter.

Schools Chief Will Keep Public Informed In Own Publications

By CHAPIN A. DAY

Max Rafferty, new state superintendent of public instruction, held his first press conference this week and made it clear he intends to keep the public informed of his department's activities in his own way. First, he's going to produce a monthly publication which will "explain, interpret and detail" the functions of the state Department of Education "for the lay people of the state." It will be circulated to "all P-TA presidents, school board presidents" and the like.

He also will write a personal letter to all school board presidents. The news letter will be "objective" while the personal letter will be "personal opinions. I hope to influence them to support our program."

The first personal letter will go out next month and thereafter "whenever needed." The first monthly publication will "tell what each de-

Instead, he said, he would have "an intelligent reaction" to all educational bills submitted to the solons.

He "concurred 100 per cent" with Governor Brown on the need for more state money to ease the plight of the local taxpayers. But said he would be against the county-wide school tax, which would raise $25 million, unless the state contributed an additional $50 million. He said he'd heard an additional $119 million mentioned, but didn't think this was practical.

Asked how he handled to communicate with the people through the press, he said, "Oh, I'll hold a regular press conference if you want it or I'll talk to you individually."

THE NEW superintendent said he had "no planned program" for the legislature this year. "After all, they con-

REPENTANT THIEF MAKES AMENDS

Bank robbers provide many surprises, but few are more pleasant than one that took place in Atlanta, Ga., not long ago.

A repentant bandit mailed back to a bank there the entire $12,030 that he had stolen a few days before.

A startled bank clerk, upon opening the two packages containing the returned money, found in them the same assortment of $1 to $100 bills that the thief had taken at gunpoint.

"The amount was exact down to the last dollar," a much relieved bank official reported. Then he summed up the incident by saying, "There is not much precedent for this sort of thing."

To be sure this is a rare exception in bandit behavior. But the very fact that the faint whisper of conscience can induce even one such person on his own initiative to right his wrongs, is evidence that God's law is continually at work in the hearts of men. That's why there is always hope for the future.

"There will be joy in heaven over one sinner who repents, more than over ninety-nine just who have no need of repentance." (Luke 15:7)

Keep me ever conscious of my shortcomings, O Holy Spirit.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

No Traffic Deaths At Hamilton

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your editorial of Jan. 9 pointing out that 1962 was the worst year in history for deaths on Marin County highways was read with special interest by Hamilton Air Force Base personnel. It is hoped that the impact of the editorial will help reduce traffic fatalities in 1963.

Despite the county statistics, Hamilton Air Force Base personnel are proud that their safety record shows no traffic fatalities involving base personnel in 1962. In fact, the last fatality involving Hamilton personnel occurred two and a half years ago—on Aug. 28, 1960.

Hamilton's safety record is a result of a preventive accident program which is accomplished by such things as car inspections, an enthusiastic seat belt program, and contests in which safe drivers are rewarded. Each unit communicates the primary attention to the safety practices of his men since their health is directly related to the successful accomplishment of his unit's mission.

The Air Defense Command

10 YEARS AGO

A study and survey of works and costs in realigning Tiburon Highway was authorized by the State Highway Commission, following requests by a delegation of Marin County residents led by Supervisor Chairman T. Fred Bagshaw.

The State Park Commission declined to act on a proposal by the Marin Conservation League that the state buy Angel Island and let Marin County operate it for recreation purposes.

Life Saver program greatly contributed to Hamilton's record. This annual safety program permits all personnel to sign "defensive driving" pledges. Drawings are held at the end of each year to award prizes to personnel who have participated in the Life Saver program without an accident.

If defensive driving could be the rule for all personnel in Marin County, we at Hamilton Air Force Base are certain the regrettable fatality trend in Marin County could be reversed.

Not Many Rumors Yet About Candidates For San Rafael Jobs

It's election year in San Rafael, but so far there hasn't been much talk about who's going to run in the April election.

Maybe they're all waiting until after Jan. 22, when city voters will decide whether or not the police chief and the city attorney should be elected or appointed.

The only election rumor circulating thus far seems to be for the post of city attorney. If the post becomes appointive, there's no reason why the city council will not appoint incumbent Al Bagshaw. But if it remains elective, others may try for it.

They tell me John G. Buresh, who is city attorney in San Anselmo, has his eye on the San Rafael job.

BOATING ENTHUSIAST Tom Boyd figured the highways would be too crowded during New Year's holiday, so he boarded his boat for an afternoon of quiet sailing.

But the growing congestion caught up with him right in San Rafael Canal en route to Marin islands. A 25-foot cruiser came out of nowhere and rammed his boat broadside, inflicting a $500 gash in the middle of his sturdy craft.

THE UNFORTUNATE man who hopped into the wrong car in San Francisco and drove it all the way home before he realized the mistake, was no doubt embarrassed.

But it was nothing compared to the embarrassment of two local police officers who drove to San Francisco police station last year to pick up a prisoner in an undercover car.

San Francisco police also had an undercover car parked nearby. The Marin officers were half way home before they realized they were in the wrong vehicle.

Their prisoner had some choice remarks about "Who should be arresting whom?"

TWO SAN RAFAEL city employees will be honored at a retirement dinner at Dominic's on Jan. 26. They are Lil (Grandma) Vanderbilt of the treasurer's office and Mario Pandiani of the street department.

Any friends who want to get in on the dinner better contact Aurora Leveroni of the city hall right away.

THERE MAY be another change in the district attorney's staff pretty soon.

One of the veteran deputies is rumored to be interested in going into private practice, and the move may come in a month or two.

President Must Rally The People Even Without Major Crisis Situation

WASHINGTON — The new Congress is meeting in a time of letdown from a prolonged crisis. There has come a pause in world affairs. For the first time in a number of years—say since the challenge over Berlin in 1958—the threat of thermonuclear war has receded somewhat into the background.

In the aftermath of mortal crisis, there are removed the unifying pressures to hang together lest we hang separately, the urgency to rally around the leader lest everything should fall apart. Thus, with the Cuban crisis behind him, Khrushchev can turn on his Chinese rivals. In the West, dispute has broken out over the leadership of the alliance, a dispute possible only since the alliance no longer feels that it is seriously challenged by the Soviet Union.

WE MAY expect that the new Congress will reflect the pause in world affairs. In our American constitutional experience, the power of the President to lead is, generally speaking, a function of some kind of national crisis, abroad in time of war and at home in a time like the great depression of the 1930s.

President Kennedy's problem in this Congress is how to lead it when there is no apparent national crisis. There is, to be sure, plenty of trouble and danger in the world in which we are so deeply involved. But trouble which does not carry with it the danger of nuclear war is, for this case-hardened generation, not a real crisis.

AT HOME, there are many problems. But there is no crisis remotely resembling that of the Thirties which generated the steam behind the New Deal. While a great many Americans are very angry about a good number of things, more people are worried that the government may take away something that they now have than are hoping that it will provide them something which they do not now enjoy. This is the feeling of a satisfied population.

And yet, under the complacent surface, there are great matters which need to be attended to. These matters do not show their consequences immediately, but only in the long run.

A prime example of this is the weakness of American education. As we fail to educate adequately one generation of school children, the evil results of this failure do not appear fully until these children grow up and become the uneducated parents of a still-less-educated generation.

IT IS HARD to arouse democracies about the long run. This is the President's difficulty in dealing with the crucial matter of overcoming the chronic sluggishness of the American economy.

The American economy is not doing what it could to provide the means for meeting the long-time needs of our expanding urbanized population. But the American economy, sluggish though it is, does nevertheless provide a remarkable defense and a rising standard of private living. The President must try to rally the support of a people which does not feel itself under the pressure of a crisis.

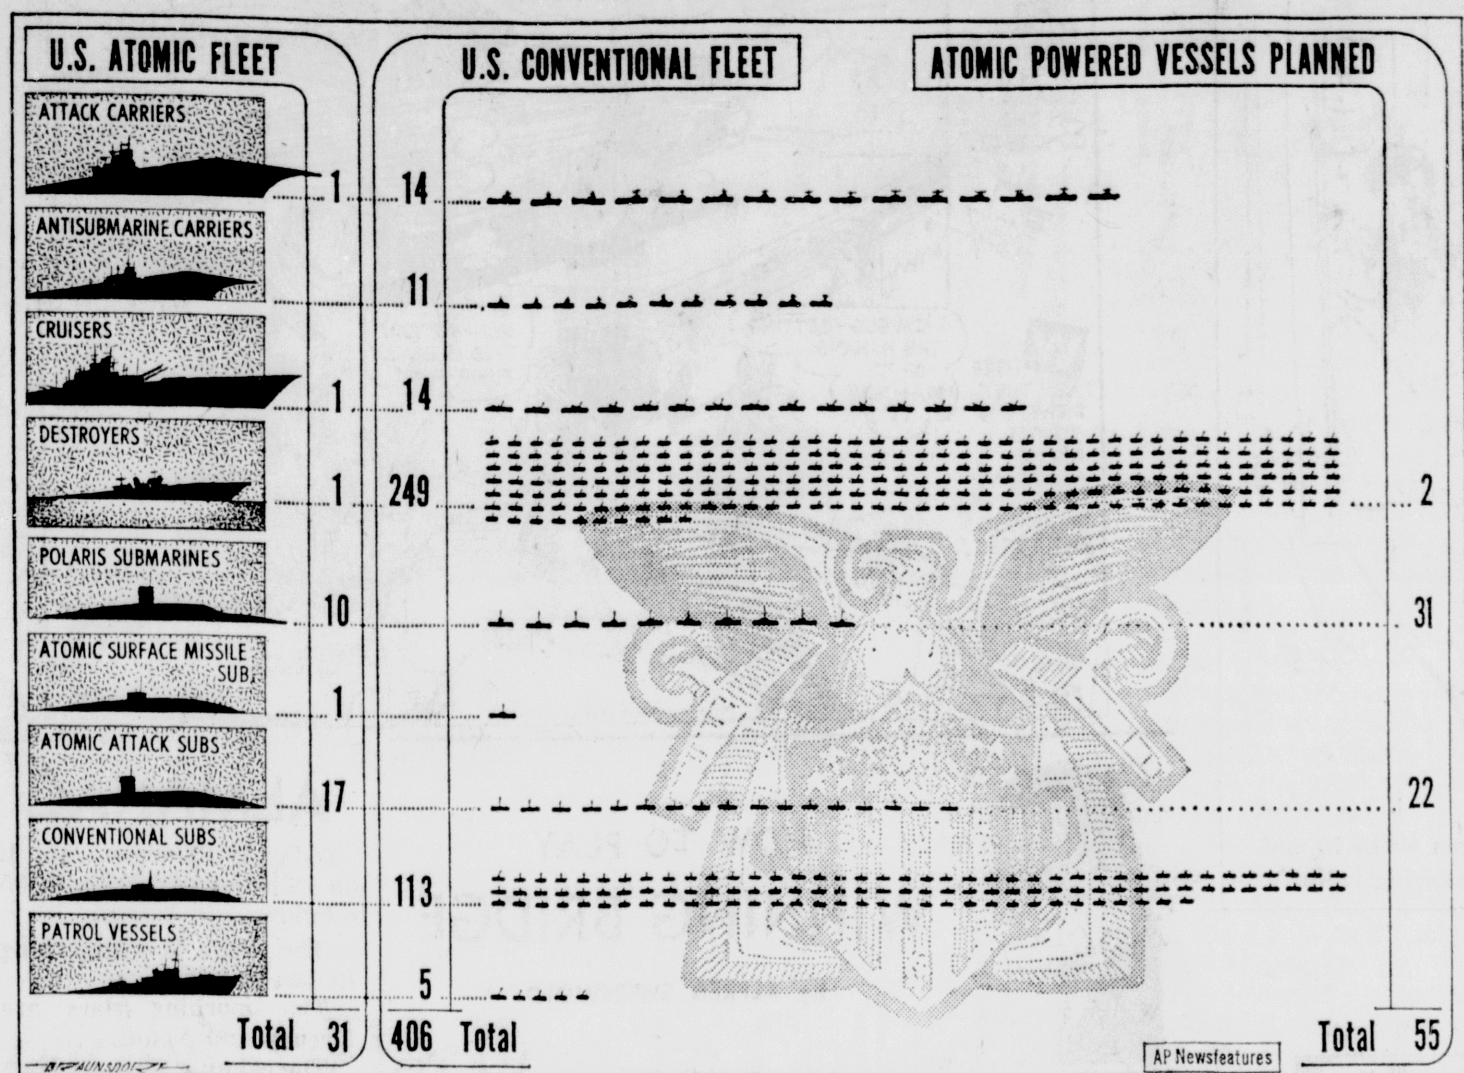

He has to be not only persuasive, but overwhelmingly persuasive, which is impossible with a very big and complicated program of measures, but may be possible with a program which is concentrated on some great issue, as for example and in particular, the expansion of the American economy.

U. S. Navy's Nuclear Fleet Is Building Up

Officials Would Like More Of These Expensive Vessels

By ELTON FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nuclear fleet of the U.S. Navy is building up a head of steam. When the Polaris submarine Thomas Jefferson was commissioned last week it brought to 31 the number of atomic powered vessels in the Navy.

A total of 86 nuclear vessels is already built, building or planned.

The Navy would like more. In fact it would like an all-atomic navy.

But the cost of such a navy, on the basis of today's prices, would be fantastic. The estimate for just the 86 ships runs into an imposing seven billion dollars. The combatant ships in the present fleet total 436.

The estimate of the investment in the 86 ships—submarines and surface vessels—does NOT include the weapons they carry. They, too, run into big money.

Take the Polaris submarine. The 41 submarines built or to be built will carry about 656 million dollars worth of missiles. Or a plane for the atomic carrier—which can run up to as much as five million dollars. The carrier may have about 100 aircraft aboard, although NOT all of them as expensive as that.

The atomic-powered force is made up of three types of submarines, the carrier Enterprise, the cruiser Long Beach and the destroyer-type Bainbridge.

In submarines, there are 17 attack types in commission out of a programmed force of 39.

As of December, the Navy had nine Polaris submarines in commission out of the 41 in the program. One other nuclear submarine in commission is equipped for firing surface launched guided missiles instead of the submerged launched ballistic missiles.

How does this atomic-powered force compare with Russia? The estimate is that the Soviet navy may have 10 to 12 nuclear submarines now, may have up to 20 by the end of next year. Russia has also had an atomic-powered ice-breaker in operation for the past two years.

Tactically and strategically, atomic-powered warships have an immense advantage, the greatest of which is for submarines. The subs can steam at full speed, without pause, almost indefinitely; can dive deep; move quietly, stay down for weeks on station for launching missiles or watching for hostile submarines.

For surface ships, the advantages are in unlimited range, at high speed, without the need to replenish fuel. The Enterprise was at sea for about six weeks during and following the Cuban crisis.

But, in addition to the initial cost, atomic-powered ships still are more expensive, by far, to operate than conventionally operated ships. Reactor cores last for tens of thousands of miles, but the material and installation is expensive.

Congo Jeopardizes Thant's Future

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The ever-boiling crisis in the Congo led indirectly to the death of U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld. Now it jeopardizes the future of his successor, U Thant, and the police powers of the United Nations itself.

Hammarskjöld died in a plane crash in the Congo Sept. 18, 1961 while trying to arrange a cease-fire between Katanga President Moise Tshombe and the central government.

Almost 16 months later, the Congo crisis remains unresolved although it appeared on a few occasions that Tshombe was prepared to admit defeat and submit to negotiations.

In the most recent development, Tshombe was reported by U. N. and diplomatic spokesmen to have fled Katanga. A U. N. source disclaimed knowledge of Tshombe's whereabouts but others said he had "left Elisabethville at high speed for Rhodesia."

Sources said Tshombe decided to abandon Katanga because he felt he would not remain a key political figure in a unified Congo.

One source went so far as to say the latest turn in the crisis might be the "Waterloo for Thant's Congo reconciliation plan."

Earlier it had been reported that Tshombe was willing to talk business but had angered his interior minister, Godefroid Munongo, who opposes unification of the rich Katanga province with the relatively poor central government of Prime Minister Cyrille Adoula.

Reports said Munongo had gone to the town of Kolwezi to marshal the gendarmarie into carrying out plans to blow up that stronghold and destroy the mines and power installations.

The United Nations' task is to prevent such destruction and to end its costly operation in the Congo.

In Washington, the 88th Congress convened on Wednesday. President John F. Kennedy won an important battle when the House Rules committee was permitted to maintain its 15 members.

Had the drive to reduce membership to 12 succeeded, the president's legislative program would have been in trouble from the outset.

With expanded membership in the rules committee, the program has a better chance of enactment.

Around The World Around The Clock

Washington—The White House made known the content of an interview Kennedy granted to 35 newsmen at Palm Beach on New Year's Eve. Main point was Kennedy's determination to build the NATO defensive alliance into a powerful war deterrent.

Havana—Castro was reported alarmed over Russian control of Cuba's armed forces. Private dispatches said Castro was attempting to organize an army loyal only to himself.

Saigon—U. S. military advisers said South Vietnamese troops were somewhat reluctant to fight Communist Viet Cong guerrillas. Their refusal to obey orders to advance against the Reds helped cause a high casualty toll, the advisers said. Seven Americans were killed in a helicopter crash last night, bringing the number of U. S. dead in Viet Nam to 56.

Warsaw — Khrushchev conferred with top Polish leaders in secrecy in Olsztyn province.

12,000 YANKS IN BATTLE

Why Viet Nam War Won't End Soon

(Editor's Note: Twelve thousand American troops are fighting determined Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam. How soon will it end? What are the prospects for victory, or defeat? In the following dispatch, a correspondent who covered the war in Viet Nam three years ago, returns and tells why he thinks the fighting will never end with a decisive military victory.)

By ARTHUR J. DOMMEN

SAIGON (UPI) — Americans, who are now deeply involved in South Viet Nam, are accustomed to thinking in terms of short, decisive wars.

But the Vietnamese peasant, who has watched continuous troops movements and heard sporadic gunfire around his bamboo hut for the past 20 years, knows that ending the struggle between the pro-Western government of South Viet Nam and the pro-Communist Viet Cong guerrillas is a matter of years, not months.

Viet Nam, once part of Indo-China in the mighty French empire of Southeast Asia, is a violent land.

The Vietnamese peasant knows that the Communist government of North Viet Nam sympathizes with the insurgents fighting against the regime of South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem. He may be only dimly aware, if at all, that North Viet Nam secretly directs and supports the guerrilla fighters in the South.

The struggle has more the semblance of an insurrection than an invasion, in any case. And the North Viet Nam government in Hanoi is careful to keep it that way.

Today, as eight years ago in the fight against the French, the black-clothed peasant in his ricefield is peacable by day but often violent by night. And, again as in the Indo-China war, it is the peasant who forms the raw material of the struggle, and is its chief victim.

He has thrown in his lot with neither the Diem government, nor the shadow administration established in his village by the Viet Cong. His lack of uniform and insignia permits him to be a soldier without commitment.

The Vietnamese peasant, thus caught in the middle, may be no more than a disgruntled toiler in the fields. He may be disillusioned with Diem's promises of land reform, or the actions of the government-appointed district chief.

His support for the guerrillas may consist only of a discreet tipoff to the local Viet Cong about government troop movements.

On the other hand, he may have lost a relative in a government "mopping up operation," and may feed, clothe and hide Viet Cong agents in his house. More often, the Viet Cong holds some compelling elements of blackmail over his head which forces him to collaborate with them.

This is the kind of soldier on which the clandestine political coordinating body of the insurrection depends. The national liberation front, formed in December, 1960, has no leading figure of any wide international reputation. It is unified by common opposition to President Diem.

Its leaders are not tongue-tied functionaries of North Viet Nam—because the Viet Minh learned during the long fight against the French that success in guerrilla warfare depends on an unshakable popular support. The insurrection must take root among, and stem from, the local inhabitants.

This is why, eight years after France's defeat at Dien Bien Phu, Vietnamese insurgents are still fabricating crude rifles and pistols from scrap iron in the swamps and jungles of the Mekong delta.

In their propaganda sheets distributed in South Vietnamese villages, the insurgents avoid the use of Communist jargon, far too complicated and remote for the average peasant to understand. Instead, they stress two major themes comprehensible to every one—liberation and unity.

It is liberation from the tyranny of Diem's palace police and his sometimes corrupt henchmen in the rural areas. It is liberation, above all, from the Americans who they say are unlawfully occupying the land of the Vietnamese people, just as the French did before the Japanese war.

It is the unity of the common people against the so-called American-Diem collaborators, the unity of the uneducated masses in the face of the privileged few of Saigon.

The idea that the struggle against Diem must be a long drawn-out one, and the people must wage it in the face of terrible difficulties is well illustrated in a captured document made available to this correspondent by an American source. It is a progress report on winning the support of a particular village in the Mekong Delta.

In the simplest terms, the party's political line must be based on the needs and interests and rights of the people," the report said. "These are concrete and plain to see. On these needs and interests we must build, educating the people, mobilizing them to rise and join the revolution."

There is a big difference between merely obtaining a man's passive acceptance and winning over his loyalty so he is ready to risk death against the well-armed soldiers of Diem's army, the report states; and the Viet Cong can never claim success until the masses are fully mobilized in their political outlook.

At the very beginning of the Viet Cong cadres' political work among the villagers, they found that they had to forge weapons and lay booby traps by themselves. Later, after months of patient indoctrination, the local inhabitants helped them.

This is how it is told:

"The people thought that the laying of naily boards (metal or bamboo spikes set in weeds or in marsh land to pierce the shoes and feet of army troops) was illegal and would result in terror and reprisals by the soldiers.

"In light of this, the party members laid the naily boards themselves, while endeavoring at the same time to educate the people.

"The party laid more naily boards than ever. Once, during a terror sweep, one of the government soldiers was injured by a naily board. This caused the soldiers to withdraw. Party members correctly regarded this as a success and held a mass meeting at which it was explained that laying of naily boards had prevented the entry of the enemy.

The cadres declared that if the people did not lay naily boards the enemies would come to collect land rents, levy taxes, impose labor, and draft young men into the army. The party then introduced the slogan: 'One naily board for each ricefield.'

According to the report, the people were eventually convinced to lay down naily boards themselves to keep the government troops out of the village. As a result, the army troops found the villagers less and less cooperative and, after several instances of getting spikes through their feet, they left the village completely alone.

The village, in effect, was abandoned to the communists.

By methods such as these, the Viet Cong village and district officers enlist the support of the peasants, exploiting their class, professions, and even individual grievances. Because the Viet Cong live inside the villages, they know each villager by name and they know his habits and what he is thinking.

This is why the harsh to-and-fro struggle for loyalty is comparable more to a cancer than to a frontal war which can be won by driving the enemy into the sea or across the 17th parallel into North Viet Nam. The enemy is within, and South Viet Nam today is deeply afflicted with this cancerous infestation.

Pressed by the success of American arms against their elusive but lightly equipped units, the Viet Cong face a choice. They can either make an all-out, win-or-die fight to overthrow the Diem government, or else disappear, temporarily at least, like fish into the murky depths of the sea of peasants and await a more favorable moment to reappear on the surface, as the anti-French Viet Minh did in 1954. The latter seems likely.

The cancerous infection can only be permanently eradicated by cutting its roots. The roots of the Viet Cong lie in peasant discontent, distrust and fear.

As long as the Viet Cong can make use of the old Viet Minh "mystique" which impelled 15-year-old youths to fight French infantry and tanks with bamboo spears, then all the American assistance in the world short of outright occupation of the country, will not put down the rebellion.

Court Due Representation Issue Again

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — City voters are banging on the doors of the Supreme Court again for equal representation.

Cases attacking the city vs. rural lineup in state legislatures have been docketed from New York, Michigan, Alabama, Maryland and Oklahoma. One from Virginia is on the way. In addition, an appeal from Georgia challenges the districting for election to the U.S. House of Representatives.

The high court has not acted on these appeals as yet, probably because it wants to get another case out of the way first—one testing the constitutionality of Georgia's county unit election system. Arguments have been scheduled for next week.

Georgia urged the court to hear the case last June, after argument sessions had ended for the term. But the court refused to take this unusual step.

As a result, the county unit plan was junked in last September's primary, in accordance with a previous order by a special three-judge federal panel in Atlanta. The election was by popular vote.

Conduct of future elections in Georgia will be determined by the Supreme Court's ruling on the state's appeal. The decision is expected some time before the end of the present term in June.

The sunburst of reapportionment lawsuits all over the country started after the high court's landmark ruling in "Baker vs. Carr," not yet a year old. There, in response to an appeal by a group of Tennesseans, the court broke precedent and opened the doors of federal tribunals to complaints of this kind.

The Tennessee voters said the population had for years been shifting from the country to the city. But the legislature has done nothing to correct the imbalance by providing for more lawmakers from city districts and fewer from rural areas.

They said 40 per cent of the voting population controlled the state senate and 37 per cent the house.

The majority opinion by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., suggested that the Constitutional right of an individual citizen to "the equal protection of the laws" could be violated in this situation. The 14th amendment contains the "equal protection" guarantee.

Soon after the decision, lower federal and state courts held unconstitutional a large number of state legislative apportionments.

Some legislatures have now reapportioned themselves; others have been rearranged by a court; and still others have been given more time to solve their problem.

But Brennan did not give lower courts any guidance on the main question: What is a proper apportionment that will be fair to all the voters?

Must both houses necessarily be set up on the basis of population? Or may the state senate be a kind of counterpart of the U.S. Senate and be based on geography?

Parties with apportionment cases now in the high court are looking for the answers. Earlier this year a conference of research scholars sponsored by the Twentieth Century fund came to some relevant conclusions in this area. The consensus was that "the only legitimate basis of representation in a state legislature is people."

"One man's vote must be worth the same as another's," a summary of the conference stated.

The scholars said this principle applies in both houses. There is no justification, they said, for a kind of "federal plan" under which districts would be represented in the state senate the same way states are in the U.S. Congress.

The Constitution embodies a theory of federalism which divides sovereign power between the nation and the states," the summary said. "A key device for protecting their residual sovereignty was the equal state voice in the senate . . . Counties, by contrast, were never independent or sovereign . . . they are wholly creatures of the states and may at any time be merged, divided or abolished by state governments."

It has suggested that two houses — a bicameral legislature — would not be needed if both were elected on a population basis.

But the conferees agreed that a second house is not a mirror of the first but provides checks and balances in the legislative process. More deliberation is insured before a law is enacted.

The conference cited Massachusetts, where both houses are apportioned by population. The house has 240 members, the senate 40, a legislature as representative of the people as any in the country. Yet the two bodies frequently disagree.

Two which arrived at opposite conclusions were the Maryland court of appeals, which upheld the apportionment of the state senate; and a three-judge federal court in Alexandria, Va., which ordered the revamping of both houses of the Virginia General Assembly.

U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan, speaking for a 2 to 1 majority in the Virginia case, rejected the so-called "federal analogy." He said state senate districts, unlike the states themselves, have no "autonomy."

The Maryland court, on the other hand, said if the Congress of the United States can run with one house selected by geography, so can a state legislature.

The court said it is true that the states which adopted the federal constitution were sovereign bodies. But it said 37 more have been admitted to the Union since 1789, none of which had ever been sovereign "with the possible exception of Texas."

Further, the opinion by Judge William L. Henderson said, "It was never suggested that senators vote by states. They were clearly members of a national congress . . ." He concluded with an indisputable statement:

"There is no unanimity of opinion to be drawn from the (recent) cases, and the final determination must await further light from the Supreme Court of the United States."

Grader's Election Is Called Important To District, U.S.

Mrs. Elizabeth Abernathy of Ann Arbor, Mich., told 165 Democratic women yesterday that "school children, old people and small businessmen" were relying on them to elect William F. Grader to Congress.

Mrs. Abernathy was one of three women traveling together in the First Congressional District on Grader's behalf. The others were Mrs. Katharine Miller, widow of the late Rep. Clem Miller, and Mrs. Geraldine Grader, the candidate's wife. The three spoke at a luncheon in Peacock Gap Golf Club, San Rafael, presided over by Mrs. Joseph Guthrie of Ross.

The Jan. 22 election is important not just to the district but to the nation and possibly even to the world, Mrs. Abernathy declared.

"The president is interested and the leaders of Congress are interested. That's why I'm here. The president asked me to come out here and tell you to elect Bill Grader."

Crucial issues before Congress may be decided by one or two votes, she claimed.

Watkins Must Answer To Assault Charges

EUREKA (UPI)—Theodore A. (Ted) Watkins, Mendocino County tax consultant, the three-time candidate for Congress in the First Congressional District, yesterday was held to answer in Humboldt County Superior Court on five counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

The charges stemmed from his alleged firing on sports fishermen along the banks of the Eel River, flowing through Watkins Mill Creek ranch, near Benbow in southern Humboldt County.

He appeared in Eureka Municipal Court for both arraignment and preliminary hearing with Judge Robert N. Connors presiding.

Witnesses appearing against him were Robert Bushnell, Cecil Etter, Rebecca McCluskey, Frank Vasquez and Andrew Carter of Garberville. All five testified that Watkins had fired on them while they were fishing in the river. Watkins claimed that they were trespassing.

Watkins' attorney, Morris M.

Grupp of San Francisco, said Watkins is developing the area into a resort and has so advertised it, that he was selling tickets to the public for the rights to be on the property, and he fired warning shots merely to protect his investment.

No date was set for the Superior Court hearing.

Boy, Girl Injured In Crash

A San Francisco boy and girl, both 17, were injured early today when their car skidded off Highway 101 at Linden Lane underpass and slammed broadside into a tree.

Treated at San Rafael General Hospital were Stephen Joel Kaplan and Carol Vela. Officer William Gregg said Kaplan told him the girl was driving. The girl was still unconscious at the hospital, and officers were unable to determine immediately which of the couple was driving.

Gregg said the car was southbound on Puerto Suello Hill at 5:35 a.m. when it went into a skid, hit the tree, and landed on the abandoned Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks. When officers arrived, Kaplan was standing next to the car and Miss Vela was lying partly out of the car.

The teen-agers were returning from Russian River, Gregg said. There was nothing to indicate what caused the accident.

Kaplan suffered a deep cut on his chin but was in good condition. Miss Vela had cuts and possible head injuries. Her condition was termed fair, and she was to be transferred to Franklin Hospital in San Francisco this afternoon.

Injured Boy's Mother Gives Birth To Girl

A second member of the Robert Piercy family of 1897 Mar West, Tiburon, entered Marin General Hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Piercy was admitted to the hospital where she gave birth to a daughter. Mrs. Piercy returned home to convalesce. The baby was reported "doing fine" at the hospital today.

Son Michael Piercy, 5, was taken to the hospital unconscious Wednesday after he was hit by an auto while riding a kiddie car. He suffered a severe head injury and did not regain consciousness until yesterday. His condition was reported as "fair" today.

Novato Home Is Ransacked

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Laxton of 1614 Vallejo Street, Novato, was ransacked between 6 and 7:30 p.m. Thursday while the couple were away at dinner, Novato police reported.

Someone forced a garage window and pried open the back door, police said. Contents of drawers throughout the house were scattered on the floor. A large trunk in a closet was pried open and its contents scattered about.

A quick check of the house did not reveal anything missing, according to police.

GOVERNOR'S MOTHER IS 85 YEARS OLD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mrs. Ida Brown, mother of Gov. Edmund G. Brown, quietly celebrated her 85th birthday yesterday.

Official duties in Sacramento prevented the governor from joining his mother, but several of her three children, 11 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren helped her celebrate.

Mrs. Brown, spry and alert, aided her best-known son in his successful re-election campaign last fall.

Troppmann Is Elected President

Jim Troppmann, quarterback of Redwood High School's football team and son of Robert Troppman, the school's head coach and director of athletics, was elected student body president yesterday.

Young Troppman's victory over Cliff Terry for the office was announced by the student election board.

The new student president, who will serve during the spring semester, lives at 6 Key Largo Cove, Corte Madera.

Announced as also elected, but without disclosure of the vote, were:

Ali Massoumkhani, an American Field Service exchange student from Iran, vice president, and Susan Broomhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Broomhead of 63 Winship Avenue, Ross, secretary.

Defeated candidates were Warren Glass, Gary Jimenez and Richard Wynne for vice president, and Dawn Urbais for secretary.

Massoumkhani will be the first foreign exchange student ever to hold student body office at Redwood High. Massoumkhani's home country is a constitutional monarchy in which some members are elected and some are appointed by the shah, and local government is controlled from the national capital, with mayors appointed.

NEGOTIATIONS ON TEXTS ORDERED

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The State Board of Education, which must trim $430,000 from the cost of two textbooks, has ordered negotiations with the publisher for a reduction in price.

Otherwise, they must accept two other books they believe less acceptable, but which are possibly less expensive.

Dr. Maxwell Rafferty, newly elected superintendent of public instruction, was directed yesterday, in conjunction with the State Department of Finance, to negotiate the reduction on two basic texts published by Ginn and Co. of Boston.

The Ginn books are "Life in Latin America," for sixth graders at a company price of $1,133,164, and the seventh grade history, "Eurasia," priced by Ginn at $1,096,000.

If negotiations fail, "Learning About Latin America," published by Silver Burdett Co., and "The Eastern Hemisphere," Allyn and Bacon Inc., would be acceptable, the board said.

The Silver Burdett book would cost $800,578 with the state printing. The Allyn and Bacon book costs $1,261,537, and the company would be offered the opportunity of meeting the state price if Ginn refuses.

The reduction was forced by a $430,000 slice from an original budget of $6,491,000 for the texts. The cut was ordered by a Gov. Edmund Brown administration economy drive.

The books are supplied free to each pupil.

Mrs. Seymour Mathiesen, board member from Fresno, protested the price limiting policy. She said the state should buy the best books available and the Legislature should provide funds for the purpose.

Dr. H. M. McPherson of Napa, a member of the Curriculum Commission that endorsed the Ginn books, told his commission that the board directive, in effect, was an invasion by the Department of Finance into education, dictating the choice of books in terms of price alone.

Gallinas Accepts Sewer Facilities

Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District directors Monday night voted to accept sewer facilities in Lucas Valley unit No. 2, an Eichler subdivision of 106 homes to be built on 25 acres.

All sewer lines have been put into the development, said district manager Annie Reagan.

The board also discussed a working and holiday schedule for its employees but postponed any adoption of a plan for the year until the next district meeting.

Microbes
Plus Oil
Equals Food

By DELOS SMITH
NEW YORK (AP)—Scientific fingers point toward a new source of highly nutritional food for the world's expanding population.
Of all things, it is oil.
Not oil as it comes from the ground. Nor oil after man has refined it with his many complicated technologies. But oil after microbes have lived in it and used it for their own nutritional and reproductive purposes.
The science world has just learned of what's been going on in a laboratory of the Societe Francaise des Petroles, near Paris, during the past five years.

Its scientists have been experimenting with microbes and oil. They've shown that microbes can convert oil into high-quality nutritional proteins faster than cattle and other meat animals can do the same with grasses and grains.

That is the climax that began with a quest for microbes which could live and multiply in mixtures of hydrocarbons, those being the basic constituents of petroleum.

The scientists found many varieties of such microbes, principally yeasts. The microbes did it in laboratory dishes but they also did it in the bottoms of oil storage tanks, in soils soaked with oil and even under the asphalt surfaces of highways.
Because these yeasts are composed mainly of proteins, their prodigious self-multiplications meant they were metabolizing hydrocarbons into proteins. Furthermore, as an additional item for astonishment, they took the wax out of them in doing so.

These yeasty proteins were of a nutritional quality comparable to meat proteins and even contained vitamins. By utilizing atmospheric oxygen the protein-conversion elaborated cellular material, such as meat has, and produced a 100 per cent yield.

That is a fabulous yield. Cattle converting grasses and grains into their protein-rich flesh fall far, far short of a 100 per cent yield. The scientists added low-cost liquid fertilizers to the hydrocarbon broths and the microbes extracted nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and trace elements from them and put them into their proteins.

This further improved the nutritional quality of the yeast-proteins and their vitamin-enrichments. If it's ever becomes a way of feeding people, it will be the microbes people will eat, just as they now eat animal flesh to obtain animal proteins.

Dr. A. Champagnat and three associates of this laboratory reported their results to the science world through the technical journal Nature. Nutritionally the present world shortage of animal protein is three million tons, or 15 million tons of lean meat. Even in 40 years increased meat animal production can not make up this shortage, but in 40 years the world population will have exploded into three billion human mouths in need of being fed.

There is a shortage of meat animals and grazing land, but no shortage of microbes and oil. The scientists estimated petroleum fermentation plants could be constructed in one to two years. Each plant, they said, would be able to produce these meat-like yeasty proteins 2,500 times faster than even the best-fed cow can produce them.

Officers were surprised when Hefner walked out of a cabin to surrender, then two other men came out of a different unit with their hands raised.
The other two were wanted in a Holtville, Calif., burglary and thought the police had come after them.

TOM DOOLEY
Late jungle doctor

New Medic
Project Launched

By RONNIE WEI

HONG KONG (AP)—A medical project patterned after that of the late jungle doctor, Tom Dooley, has been launched in this refugee-packed colony, but only after overcoming problems ranging from comic to tragic.

Dr. James Turpin of Coronado, Calif., founder of Project Concern, and his associates are providing medical care to about 50 refugee children in a poverty-stricken area of Kowloon. They also distribute free milk, vitamin pills and chocolate bars to about 300 children in the area.

A 60-foot barge is being converted into a floating clinic at a cost of $8,000. The clinic will be moored in a typhoon shelter jammed with refugee fishermen from Red China.

But the project was nearly wrecked by its founder even before Turpin reached Hong Kong.

The 34-year-old American doctor aroused a storm of protest in Hong Kong when he told a news conference before leaving New York that he planned to set up a clinic here "under an opium den, next to a pig pen and across the street from a house of prostitution."

Turpin's statement drew sharp criticism from newspapers and government officials. One Chinese language newspaper charged that Turpin was only interested in publicity. Hong Kong police demanded the address of Turpin's proposed clinic so they could raid the opium den and the house of prostitution.

When Turpin arrived he learned belatedly that he could not practice here because he did not hold a British or Commonwealth medical degree.

Turpin and his partner, Paul Fleenor of Greensboro, Kan., called on government officials, newspapermen and prominent local businessmen and explained the aims of Project Concern. They admitted their mistakes and "scanty knowledge" of this British colony's laws and regulations.

Turpin applied to the British Medical Council in London for a certificate allowing him to practice here and gradually the tide of public opinion turned.

A Chinese businessman offered Turpin free storage space for medical supplies donated by American manufacturers.

Project Concern is even better than President Kennedy's Peace Corps, the businessman told reporters. "It has no political affiliation and is truly a people-to-people program without government intervention."

Project Concern has attracted overseas attention. Civic clubs in New Zealand and Australia have written to Turpin offering financial aid.

Late last month Turpin was named one of the "100 outstanding young men of 1962" by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Encouraged by this progress, Turpin hopes to set up similar clinics throughout Southeast Asia.
Recalling his early difficulties Turpin said: "They have proved to be a blessing rather than a setback. After surviving these difficulties we now are convinced we will be able to achieve our aim."

First Stop With First Record Is Radio KTIM

A few hours after Doug Myers first record, as one of the members of the Easy Riders, arrived in the office of the San Francisco distributor the Almonte resident had one in his hand and was riding back to Marin County.

The first stop for the 29-year-old folk singer was radio KTIM where the record was first played on a radio station Thursday afternoon.

Today the record, which has the same title as the group's name, goes on sale nationwide under the Epic label.

Myres plays with Frank Miller and Jerry Yester, both of Los Angeles, in the trio, Miller, a member of the original Easy Riders, reformed the folk group recently. They have two more recordings to make for Epic under their present contract.

Myres said, "I can't think of another group that we're like. We are a very versatile group. We can handle any language." As an example of the group's proficiency in language, Myres cites the song which he composed in French for the album. Myres, who can't speak French, composed the lyrics for "Adieu Cherie" from a French dictionary.

He adds, "The grammar is right. I had it checked out."

Another of Myres' favorites in the album, which he says "will flip you," is "Run, Come, See Jerusalem." He describes it as "an eyewitness description of a sea disaster by a blind man."

Myres, who is manager of the Gallery in Mill Valley and hopes to by it soon, settled at 115 Highland Lane six weeks ago after "passing through and I hit Mill Valley and I liked it."

He expects that the trio will "hit the road" in four or five weeks after the record has made its initial impact. Meanwhile, Myres will strum his guitar at the Gallery for the benefit of customers.

Fate Of Club In Novato Up To Court

Whether Novato's Silver Hills Country Club is dissolved and operated as a private club, or whether another club is formed to take its place will be determined at a hearing Monday before the referee in bankruptcy in San Francisco.

Peter Denevi of Los Gatos and Jack Myers of Stockton have offered to take over the club's indebtedness and operate it as a private club. By yesterday they had signed up about 200 members at $50 each, reported Denevi.

They hope to sell enough memberships to pay off the $60,000 second mortgage and make payments on the first mortgage. They would operate the club with the present $5 monthly dues doubled. Denevi said they figure this would return a profit.

The Silver Hills Country Club was placed in voluntary bankruptcy last Sept. 25 by its manager, John Bowen. Since that time, members have held sporadic meetings to try to salvage the club.

Denevi is a coach at Los Gatos High School. He owns the Los Gatos Swim and Racquet Club and the Aptos Beach and Racquet Club in Monterey.

Myers is coach at University of the Pacific in Stockton. With Denevi, he owns the West Lane Tennis Club in Stockton.

Wrong Name Attempt Backfires

A 20-year-old San Rafael man who tried to use another man's name when he was arrested early today was jailed under his own name, with bail set at $1,050.

Fairfax police arrested Denis Clark Murphy of 849 Belle Avenue on suspicion of drunken driving, driving with a revoked license, resisting arrest, and unlawful impersonation.

Fairfax Police Officer Dee Carter stopped Murphy on Cascade Drive at 2:45 a.m. for erratic driving. Murphy allegedly showed the officer a draft registration card of Richard Cole, 22, of 6 Octavia Street, San Rafael.

Murphy was being booked under that name at Marin County Jail when some acquaintances arrived to bail another friend. They began calling Murphy by his right name.

Officers said that when they began questioning Murphy, he started to fight them. He had to be subdued by deputies and Fairfax police.

Murphy is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday afternoon to answer the charges.

Tiburon Parking To Be Studied By Chamber Group

Tiburon's number one problem, parking, will be tackled by the Tiburon Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

President James Murray at yesterday's meeting appointed himself and Mimi Berticevich, owner of Tahitian Tikis, to discuss parking needs with Main Street merchants, review past studies made by the county planning commission, and find out whether Pacific Railroad properties would be available.

The committee is to report in March.

Murray, who was re-elected president last month, appointed the following committees: membership, Stuart D. Burt, David W. Allen, and William H. Rafter; program, Robert A. Sterling and Harold E. Sloot; promotion and advertising, William Howell, Charles Abrams, Mrs. Berticevich and Corena Green; finance and business development, Howard E. Langford, George Bitter and William S. Johnstone.

AGED

Continued from page 1 estimates that 55 per cent of nursing home care in California will fall under the MAA program.

Under the new schedule adopted by the state, MAA will pay only $219 per month per patient to the nursing homes, and the counties cannot supplement this without having the state sum reduced accordingly.

Nursing home representatives contend that the state payments will not meet care costs.

SHE THOUGHT IT WAS AN EARTHQUAKE — Officer Gilbert Freitas of San Rafael police peers into hole smashed into home of Mrs. Sophie E. Seibel at 337 Seibel Avenue by car driven by William Harrison Andrews of San Francisco. Mrs. Seibel was awakened by crash and jar, but thought it was an earthquake and went back to sleep. Andrews remained unconscious in car for an hour after crash. (Independent - Journal photo)

Just Out Of Hospital, He's Injured In Crash

A San Franciscan, released only yesterday from a hospital where he had been for three weeks for an injury suffered in an industrial accident, crashed his car into a house in San Rafael's Picnic Valley early today.

Inside the house at 337 Seibel Avenue, Mrs. Sophie E. Seibel was awakened by a crash and jar at 12:50 a.m. "I thought it was an earthquake," she told police. She rolled over and went back to sleep.

The motorist, William Harrison Andrews, 39, lay unconscious in the wrecked car for nearly an hour. When he finally recovered consciousness, he walked to the nearby home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scruggs, at 211 Picnic Avenue, where he called police at 1:46 a.m.

Andrews told police he fell asleep while driving southeast on Picnic Avenue.

The car left the street, plunged 20 feet down an embankment, sideswiped an in-board motorboat parked on a trailer beside the Seibel house, and smashed into a corner of the house.

The propeller and rudder of the boat were damaged. Damage to the house was estimated at $1,500.

Andrews was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut forehead.

Continued from page 1 heavy security precautions. He left in a chartered plane in the direction of Lusaka, the capital of Northern Rhodesia. But it was believed that he was flying to Solwezi, in Northern Rhodesia, where he would board a Katanga plane to Kolwezi.

United Nations forces in Katanga continued to occupy more territory while holding off on any attack on Kolwezi. An announcement in Leopoldville said U.N. troops today quietly occupied the former Katanga stronghold at Sakanika on the Rhodesian border, about 110 miles south of Elisabethville.

Scout Council Installation Set

Thomas Barfield of Bolinas will be installed president of the Marin Council, Boy Scouts of America, at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Scout Hall, 739 A Street, San Rafael.

Other officers to be installed at the annual meeting are Roy Michael, Dr. G. William Maglady and William P. Murray Jr., vice presidents; William P. Murray Sr., treasurer; Elmer S. Palmquist, assistant treasurer, and Charles Convis, council commissioner.

Carl G. Brown Jr., retiring council president, will be in charge of the meeting. Silver Beaver awards will be presented to two men selected by a committee of the council, who have done outstanding work for the scouts.

Theft From Car

Earl A. Loos, 436 Alameda de la Loma, Novato, told sheriff's deputies that someone entered his unlocked car while it was parked at Nave Lanes last night and took a floor mat and a flashlight worth a total $12.50.

Bank Robbery Accusations Draw Denials

Robert Justice Leeps, 25, in federal court in San Francisco yesterday, denied taking part in five Northern California bank robberies, two of which involved kidnapping of Marin County residents.

Trial of Leeps was set for Jan. 28, along with that of his accused partner, Jimmie Bee Workman, 26.

Total haul in the robberies was reportedly $150,000, but both Leeps and Workman said they could not afford to hire lawyers. They will be defended by court-appointed attorneys.

In one robbery, Nov. 10, 1961, the pair allegedly held Joseph A. Finocchio and his family hostage in their Greenbrae home at 3 Via La Cumbre. Next day they allegedly robbed the Webster and Union Branch of Bank of America, of which Finocchio is manager, of $62,693.

On Aug. 28, 1961, the pair allegedly robbed the San Francisco International Airport Branch of Bank of America of $9,766. In this robbery they are accused of holding William N. Hartauer of 45 Martens Boulevard, San Rafael, a captive in the trunk of his car. He is controller of a restaurant next door to the bank.

Because of the kidnappings, the two could receive the death penalty if convicted.

Kentfield Man Hurt In Auto Accident

Rudolph A. Morris, 75, of 300 Palm Avenue, Kentfield, suffered minor injuries yesterday in an auto accident at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Eliseo Drive, Kentfield.

The California Highway Patrol said Morris was westbound and turning left from Sir Francis Drake onto Eliseo when his car was hit by an eastbound auto driven by George Christopher Ashoff, 51, of 138 Terrace Avenue, Kentfield. Morris told officers he would go to his own physician for treatment.

LaTorre reported to the San Rafael Police Department at 12:55 a.m. that the youth he cut in front of had beaten him in the rest room of the skating rink—and not just with fists. LaTorre said he did not know who his assailant was. He was treated at Marin General Hospital at 12:09 a.m. for cuts over both eyes.

Dance At Drake

"Back-to-School Blues"; a "stag or drag" dance, will be held at Sir Francis Drake High School from 9 o'clock to midnight tonight.

Gains Made Toward Sewer Agreement

Substantial agreement was reached last night by members of three Stinson Beach and Bolinas agencies on the first step toward joint sewage disposal facilities for the area, Sherman Smith, a director of the Bolinas Public Utility District, said today.

Most of the directors of the Bolinas PUD, the Bolinas Beach Public Utility District, and the Stinson Beach County Water District were present at a meeting in the Bolinas Community Center.

Smith said the group agreed substantially to make a survey on sharing the cost of an engineering survey.

The next step will be for the individual boards to agree to the cost survey, probably through resolutions which will be drawn up on the basis of last night's discussion, Smith said.

Bolinas Public Utility District is in the process of taking over the original Bolinas sewer lines, which carry untreated effluent into the ocean. Pressure is being brought by the Bay Region Water Pollution Control Board for treatment facilities.

The other two agencies' areas now use septic tanks, but are considering joining Bolinas PUD in a joint disposal plan.

Unification of the three agencies was considered about a year ago but was abandoned, Smith said.

COLD

Continued from page 1 lars worth of crops. A Texas crop disaster could mean climbing prices at supermarkets throughout the nation. Citrus and vegetable prices at the groceries have already been pushed upwards by a crop-killing frost in Florida last month.

The U. S. Weather Bureau pulled out all stops in describing the storm system which swept over all but the far west.

"A raging blizzard struck the upper Midwest from the Eastern Dakotas and Nebraska eastward to lower Michigan," the Weather Bureau report said. "Another storm over West Virginia caused a wide belt of rain, sleet and snow through the north and middle Atlantic states."

When the Marinwood-Ignacio freeway link and the interchange are completed, next freeway section will be that through Novato, route for which was the subject of long wrangling before the Division of Highways last November selected a by-pass known as the "J route."

Valley Baptist Pastor Announces Resignation

Rev. Stanley Walsh, founding pastor of the Valley Baptist Church at 9 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael, told the congregation Sunday that he was resigning to take a lengthy rest.

He said he has not yet decided on his future ministry but expects to make that decision soon. Church members have begun the search for a new pastor.

St. Columba's Meeting

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness will begin at 6:30 p.m. tonight at 6:30 with a pot luck dinner at Frick Hall in the church.

Election of two new members to the bishop's committee and delegates and alternate delegates to the diocesan convention is on the agenda.

Lice Are Still With Us And Could Raise Havoc In Case Of Another War

It is questionable whether many Americans are interested in lice. But the little fellows are still with us and could raise havoc if we had a war or lowered our standards of cleanliness. These parasites transmit disease in addition to being an annoyance. They are easily killed with insecticides and medicated shampoos are available for head lice.

At one time it was believed that the louse originated in the perspiration of man and infestation was looked upon as a sign of well being. Even a king could flick a louse from his blouse without losing prestige. Some of the children evacuated from the Mediterranean area to England during World War II had to be deloused. Public Health officials called the mothers putting live lice back into the hair of their youngsters "for luck." They believed vermin were natural to childhood.

OUR ATTITUDE toward lice depends upon basic beliefs. In countries where these hitchhikers are welcome, authorities have a real problem on their hands when louse-borne diseases are prevalent. Superstitions must be overcome before any cleanup program can be successful.

Lice are tiny but large enough to be seen and can be detected if a thorough search is made. They lay eggs that become firmly cemented to the hairs and protrude from their shafts as small, pearly, pear-shaped bodies. Lice become motionless when exposed to light but move slowly when stimulated.

THEY DO NOT jump or leap, which explains why direct contact with an infested person or his belongings is necessary to acquire the pest. The new victim is bothered by itching whereas those who always have harbored a colony or two never seem to be troubled. They may be immune to the bites.

It is doubtful whether a schoolhouse existed in any part of the world where one or more individuals were not infested with head lice. A child so afflicted may disrupt an entire school. It is surprising how apathetic some families can be about the infestation. They shrug their shoulders and say, "It was caught at school and should be treated by the school."

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BLASTOFFS
J. B. writes: Does blowing your top all the times cause heart trouble and ulcers?

REPLY
Yes, if such lack of self-discipline is an indication of being emotionally disturbed most of the time. On the other hand, some people feel better after blowing their top, provided this is used as a means for releasing tension. In such cases the family or associates may develop ulcer or heart disease.

HERNIA IN WOMEN
Mrs. E. P. writes: What are the symptoms of female hernia?

REPLY
Women may develop various types of hernia but none is given this distinctive title. Most hernias are characterized by a protrusion or bulging from the weakened area. They may or may not be painful and are most noticeable when straining or coughing.

UGLY VEINS
W. M. writes: Do varicose veins look any better after they are operated on?

REPLY
The appearance of the legs improves as soon as the veins lose their wormy look, that is, are removed or obliterated. BLOOD CELL DESTRUCTION
A. W. writes: Is hemolytic jaundice the same as hemolytic anemia?

REPLY
Yes, in that the major fault centers about the destruction of the red blood cells. This in turn leads to anemia and yellowing of the skin (jaundice). Today's Health Hint—Know your heredity.

Sam's A Rat, But He's No Vermin

SAN RAFAEL'S DOWNTOWN DISTRICT looked approximately like this when W. T. Ortman arrived here in 1901 as a boy of 11. This old photograph, from the Roy D. Graves collection, was taken four years later—in 1905. It shows Fourth Street, looking east from C. Note the dirt street, with a little rock scattered on its surface. But cement sidewalks had already arrived in San Rafael.

San Rafael At Turn Of The Century

(Editor's Note: W. T. Ortman arrived in San Rafael in 1901 as a boy of 11 and resided here until 1920. Now living in Oakland, he has maintained close contact with Marin and still has relatives living in the county. For the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine, he has written a manuscript of his recollections of early Marin. Today he tells what San Rafael looked like when he arrived more than 61 years ago. Other portions of his manuscript will be carried in future issues of the magazine from time to time.)

By W. T. ORTMAN

When I stepped off the little narrow gauge coach of the North Pacific Railroad onto the plank-built platform of the B Street depot in San Rafael in the autumn of 1901, I found myself on a wooden floor extending 400 feet parallel to the train.

To my youthful mind, it was an immense stage stretched out westward to a point where it leveled to the grade of B Street.

From the train to the edge of the platform measured 30 feet. The elevation of the floor was 36 inches above the ground. It was designed so that hotel "buses" and the "taxis" could back up to the station platform and patrons could step into the vehicles with ease. Also, private carriages could draw up parallel to the platform.

The station was midway of the platform, and housed a ticket office, waiting room and freight shed. Several baggage trucks lined up along side of the wall of the building. Beyond the shed the platform extended a hundred feet east.

MORE THAN this, there was nothing except a solitary fire-extinguisher hanging on the freight shed wall.

I helped my mother and aunt along with two brothers and a sister from the coach.

During this period the two hotel bus drivers continued to hawk their respective hotels. These hotel barkers were nothing to me as I had heard as many as 50 lined up at the Ferry Building in San Francisco, making the day hideous with their shouting. I never was able to detect the names of the various hotels.

So, here on the platform, I speculated as to which of the two San Rafael hotels my mother would select. It appeared she knew in advance. Within seconds after detrain- ing, mother led us to the Central Hotel bus.

When the bus drove out of the large oval back of the station, I found myself sitting at the rear of the bus. It gave me a full view of that part of town we were driving through. As the bus turned into B Street and headed north, the street, as if in motion, receded southward to the foothills.

W. T. ORTMAN
Looks back 61 years

B Street was a graded dirt road topped with some rock, about 30 feet wide from curb to curb.

Already at this time San Rafael boasted downtown sidewalks of cement, although there were some remnants of the plank walks with redwood stringers for curbing.

NINE FEET above the sidewalk, a porch roof extended out from the building to a foot beyond the curb line. It was supported by four-by-four-inch posts nine feet high.

There were, however, some buildings without a porch to shade the walk below. Such buildings had a sheer drop from the roof eave to the sidewalk. This type of building gave no protection against the summer sun or the winter rains. It did, however, permit more light into the store.

Such a building was the two story, frame building known as the Anderson Building on the northwest corner of Third and B streets. Anderson had a meat and poultry store on the ground floor and rented rooms on the second floor.

The general run of stores and shops was of a rag-a-tag type of construction—a low, one story wooden frame shed-type shack, with the front being rectangular in shape and reaching above the ridge of the shed.

A curious feature of the general layout of San Rafael was that only the corner lots sported the two to two-and-a-half story buildings.

The one exception to this apparent plan was the Central Hotel. It was located in the center of the block on the north side of Fourth Street between B and C. It was a two-story brick building constructed by San Quentin convict labor in the year 1859.

UPON OUR arrival at the hotel that first day, my observations were that the hotel lobby had a high ceiling. And the room, being large, gave me the impression that I was very small. The floor was of pine and clean. It had been scrubbed spotless. To add to its bareness, the room was sparsely furnished with only a few chairs and a reading table. Other than this, there was only the hotel desk with the clerk behind it trying to appear busy with bits of mail and door keys.

We were assigned rooms on the second floor. Thereafter, as soon as we were settled, I was out on the street. The rest of the day I went the length and breadth of the town.

Once a person left the business section of the town, he found himself walking along streets lined with white cottages with porches decorated heavily with white and pink roses. Within the white picket fences was a multitude of various colored flowers which gave forth fragrances which drew the bees from afar. Beneath the bright sunlight and in the lazy heat of the day, the steady drone of the bees could be heard among the flowers.

It was the languid time of day, and San Rafael dozed quietly in its siesta.

At the turn of the century, San Rafael had become a quiet, sedate little "bedroom" for San Francisco. People who loved the quiet of the countryside and spaciousness of country estates came here to live. Here now lived the millionaire amid his flowers and shrubs, his madrone and oak trees that nigh blotted out the view of his expansive mansion.

Here in 1901, such estates dotted the western suburbs of San Rafael, and on the eastern side all of Magnolia Valley from Mission Street to the Puerto Suello was a scattering of attractive residences amidst a pleasant surrounding of a rural atmosphere.

THESE WERE the homes of W. T. Coleman, the Harrison Dibbles, the Hatfields of the Columbia marble company, Judge Thomas Lennon of the superior court (later raised to the appellate court), the Zook family, the head of which was the superintendent of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. His son, Edgar T. Zook, was appointed by Gov. Hiram Johnson to the superior court bench to fill the vacancy made by Judge Lennon when he went to the court of appeals. Edgar Zook was a young man not long out of law school.

Leon Douglass, a millionaire inventor, was to live in the Peter Donahue house. Then, too, there was Tuxton Beale, former United States ambassador, who lived in his family mansion atop the bluff at the embarcadero. From there he could look down upon San Francisco Bay to the south and San Pablo Bay to the north and east.

These were the self-made people who now could relax and enjoy the seclusion of their estates away from the "maddening crowd."

There too were those who had not yet made their mark upon the world or acquired the "where-with-all" which would permit them to retire behind an iron fence of a country villa. These were the commuters who daily flowed back and forth across

San Francisco Bay to the money marts, commercial malls and counting houses, and yet who enjoyed the peace and quiet of the countryside when the day was done.

Thus the little pueblo of San Rafael had struggled through from its 1834 inception to the turn of the century.

A Report From The Peace Corps

By DON KEOWN

Letters from a young Marin man to his mother reflect the inner satisfaction and feeling of accomplishment that comes from participation in Uncle Sam's Peace Corps program.

Hagen Bruckner, 22, Roumanian-born, a former College of Marin student and construction worker, arrived in Bogota, the capital of Colombia, in May of 1962 with a party of 42 Peace Corps volunteers.

Behind them lay a period of rugged training in Puerto Rico for the work and hardships ahead. ((Said young Bruckner of the required distance swimming with legs tied: "It was a miracle no one drowned.")

OF THE RECEPTION in Bogota, Bruckner wrote his mother, Mrs. Martha Bruckner of 168 Camino de Herrera, San Anselmo:

"The warmth with which the people here received us was simply overwhelming. Also the press and radio interviewers were very friendly, with the exception of a small Communist paper."

Following some final training in Bogota at the University of the Andes, Bruckner was assigned to the mountain village of Miraflores and to a community development program there. More specifically, the goals included the construction of two schools, two bridges, three aqueducts and several big vegetable gardens "which are hardly known here."

Letters from Miraflores to Mrs. Bruckner have been tardy in arriving, since mail service from such remote areas is understandably slow.

In the first, Hagen described his new "hometown" in this manner:

"MY VILLAGE, Miraflores, is located north of Bogota on the east side of the Andes at a height of about 6,000 feet. From the nearest town, Tunja, it is 40 miles on a dirt road through high, rugged mountains. In spite of its height, the valley of Miraflores has a tropical climate because it is so close to the Equator . . .

"I saw my first coffee plantation here. Colombian coffee, by the way, is rated as the best in the U.S. . .

"A few days ago I bought myself a fine horse, called Llenero. I needed it because there are only small paths in this area, and they are so muddy that even the horse often gets stuck. It sometimes takes me six hours on horseback to get to one of the veredas (small villages) where we have to organize juntas (citizen committees) as the first step in our work. But the campesinos (rural residents) receive us with open arms and that makes everything worthwhile . . .

"In spite of being poor, people here can be very gay and happy. I love to join them in their South American dances . . .

"Recently I saw a wild bullfight with lots of men being trampled by the bulls, but apparently it was all part of the fun. Later huge parts of meat were roasted on open fires."

BUT SOON Hagen's letters began to reflect an impatience with the slow rate of progress of his Peace Corps program.

"Finally," he wrote his mother, "all juntas in our area are organized. Lots of projects and plans are discussed. They expect so much from us . . . I am afraid it will not be easy to accomplish even a little."

"The problem is to make the people here realize that each project is their own responsibility, and that we only help them if they are willing to work at it themselves as a community project . . ."

Soon he was able to report that "we have already put a roof on a widow's house and leveled a place for a basketball court. We got the bulldozer from the careteros (the big coffee growers) who support the 'action communal' of the government. I understand the U.S. Alliance for Progress plan helps to supply the money for this program."

"Our living quarters are very primitive," Bruckner wrote his mother. "We two Americans and our Colombian partner live in a house not bigger than about 12-by-12-feet. It has only two tiny windows and no fireplace."

"We recently acquired a table and some chairs for our living area, and I am making a bookshelf now. We keep the rest of our belongings in our suitcases and boxes on the floor."

"BEHIND A partition we have three beds close together, a small closet and a cold shower with water only a few hours a day."

"The food is simple, too. Potatoes, rice, and roots for almost every meal, some bread, beans, eggs, a little meat, sometimes fruit."

Hagen's letters grew more disheartened.

"Our work progresses slowly," he wrote. "There are many meetings with lots of talking. Many trips have to be made to Bogota to get plans approved and to obtain materials."

Throughout September and October, the letters continued to reflect the Peace Corpsman's impatience with the lack of concrete progress.

And then, finally in November, the "sun" broke through.

Letters home took on a new tone of optimism as every-

"Should My Fur-Trimmed Coat Be Drycleaned?"

A fur-trimmed coat can be drycleaned; however, it is better if the fur is detachable. That is something that should be looked into when the coat is purchased. Any garment that combines cloth with fur cleans better if the fur is detachable. Cleaning fur with the cloth dries out the fur and shortens its life. Genuine fur is, of course, hair grown in skin and demands special cleaning treatment if it is to give maximum service.

Some simulated furs appear so much like fur these days that it is difficult for the average person to tell them apart.

Simulated Persian Lamb fabrics appear like genuine fur and some will dryclean satisfactorily, but the Persian Lamb which is glued to a background fabric cannot, because the adhesive dissolves in drycleaning solvent. Other rich fur-type pile fabrics with woven or knit backings may be drycleaned but are subject to matting or tufting damage from excessive heat or wear. Discuss your cleaning problem with your professional drycleaner. He has the knowledge and the equipment to give your fur-trimmed coat, whether with natural or simulated fur, the best service.

thing seemed to improve — the weather, the lodgings in a new house, the food, and, most important, the working progress.

A letter in December found Hagen brimming with enthusiasm:

"The wonderful time of practical work has finally come. Last week, the first sacks of cement were brought by mules to the Vereda de Esperanza. With more than 20 men, we have started to make blocks and to pour cement for a school.

"THIS WEEK we will begin another school . . .

"Now it is harvest time here. The coffee is ripe. The trees, full with oranges and other fruit, are blossoming in all colors. The creeks become smaller and clearer, and the paths drier.

"Bulls are grazing in the meadows, and the little Indian mud huts look cheerful among banana, bamboo, sugar cane and coffee plants. The view goes clear through the whole fertile valley to the high mountain tops.

"With our work progressing, we live healthier and happier in a true paradise."

Why did her son join the Peace Corps?

Mrs. Bruckner replies that "he was always very much interested in Latin America. He had made trips to Mexico and liked it very much. So he wanted to go still further south. Then, too, he likes travel and people, and enjoys a rugged way of life. And he is very good at speaking Spanish."

HAGEN'S TWIN brother, Helge, also toyed with the idea of joining the Peace Corps, but decided to finish his college work before making a decision. He is studying engineering at Sonoma State College.

Mrs. Bruckner also has a married daughter, Mrs. Barbara Dausse of San Anselmo.

Mrs. Bruckner admits that she has worried at times about Hagen in his new distant and remote "hometown."

"Especially," she adds, "when you read about such things as a bandit attack with grenades upon a bus in which 24 people were killed."

But she has the consolation of knowing that her son is a self-reliant young man who has demonstrated, in the past, an ability to take care of himself.

And the personal satisfaction which Hagen has expressed in his more recent letters has also made it easier for his mother to stand the separation.

However, whereas Mrs. Bruckner has had to rely on the slow and erratic mail service from the Andes for past news of her son's work and welfare, she is now absorbing some personal knowledge of what life is like for the young Peace Corpsmen.

SHE LEFT BY plane Christmas Day for Colombia and a one-month visit with her son.

When she returns, she'll have a clearer understanding of just what her son's life in the Andes is like. And she will be in a better position to share with him the frustrations and triumphs that are part of life in the Peace Corps.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

The year 1963 will introduce FM Multiplex Stereo to many homes. Already we have five FM radio stations broadcasting in stereo in our Bay Area.

A review of what FM Multiplex Stereo or more simply FM Stereo really is and what it does for you may be in order. When we listen to a stereo program, we are basically listening to two sound channels one coming from a speaker on the LEFT and one coming from a speaker on the RIGHT. These two sound channels are independent of each other; that is, the LEFT speaker is reproducing the musicians and sounds that were on the left side of the performing area and the RIGHT speaker is reproducing the musicians and sounds that were on the right side of the performing stage. This gives us a dimensional effect because it allows us to localize musicians and sounds by giving them direction.

By means of a complicated electronic process called multiplexing, some of the FM stations are actually broadcasting TWO SOUND CHANNELS simultaneously. To receive this double signal you tune-in one FM radio station and not two stations with two dials. By tuning in just one of these FM stations, and switching your set to multiplex stereo, sometimes called Stereo FM, your set will separate the complex radio signal and send the LEFT program material into your left speaker, and the RIGHT program material into your right speaker. In other words, by the flip of a switch you have stereo from the FM air waves, providing of course that you have a stereo FM tuner or receiver, and that you are tuned to one of the five stereo stations in our area.

The new stereo FM tuners and receivers that are now available have a stereo beacon or sound indicator to tell you if that particular station to which you are tuned is broadcasting in FM Stereo.

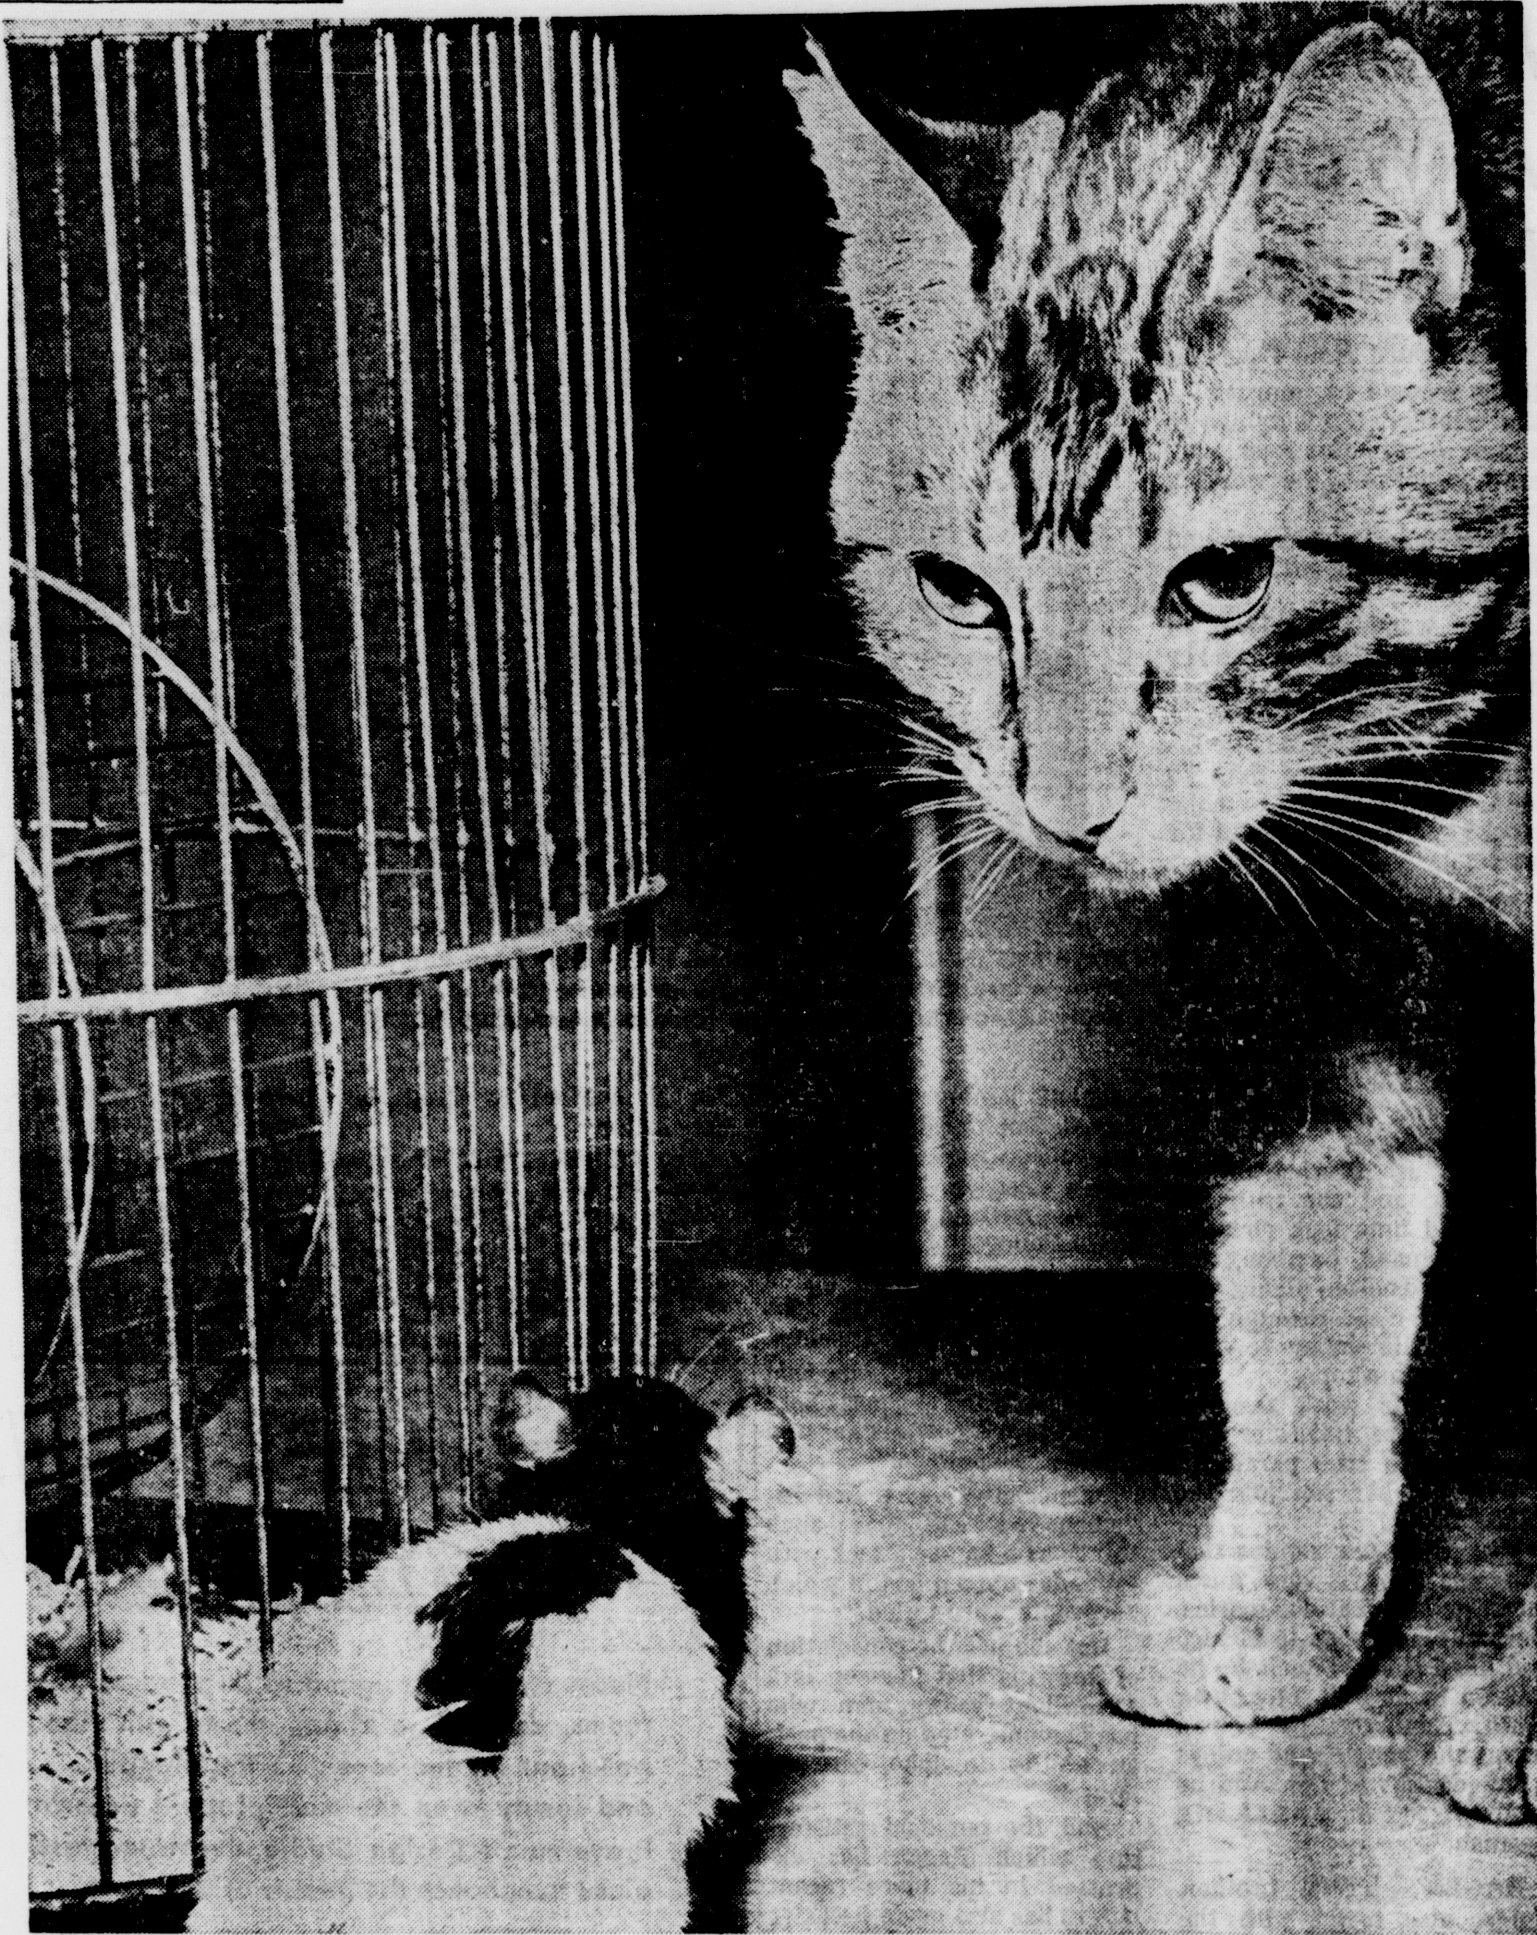

To achieve the full dimensional spaciousness of FM Stereo, the speakers should not be placed too close together. The radio consoles that have their speakers within three or four feet of each other will not provide you with a stereo sound unless you are standing directly in front of the set and within three feet.

For a wonderful experience of FM Stereo, visit our sound room and listen.

'Rats!,' Say Marin Pet Owners

They're Smart, Affectionate And Easily Cared For

By DON KEOWN

It takes mother a little while to get over her initial shock when her offspring asks for a white rat as a pet. But usually, the transaction, if carried out, works out quite well.

So says Jules Gall of the Fur, Feathers and Fins pet shop in San Rafael.

Gall has been responsible for placing a number of pet rats in Marin homes.

"ACTUALLY, while you hear more about white mice and hamsters as pets, white rats are quite popular," he says. "There are a surprisingly large number of them in Marin homes."

Rats generally work out better than mice as pets, Gall asserts.

"This is because they are more intelligent and less shy than mice," he explains.

White rats require some handling, he admits, before they become accustomed to their new owners. But once this familiarity is established, the rats will not bite.

And this despite the fact they own sharp teeth which makes it essential that their pens or cages be constructed of metal, otherwise, they will soon gnaw their way out to freedom.

The pet rats display their innate shrewdness by quickly mastering such tricks as solving the intricacies of a complex maze or ringing a small bell for their dinner.

A WHEEL, similar to that used for squirrels, is a must inside the cage if the rat is to obtain the proper amount of exercise.

Feeding is no problem as the rat will eat and thrive upon just about anything—including a pet turtle in the case of one Marin household.

Gall says that all white rats sold by Fur, Feathers and Fins and by other Marin pet stores have been bred and raised completely in domesticity.

While the demand for rats as pets is brisk, there is one factor which has kept sales within certain limits.

"USUALLY A purchaser will buy a pair of white rats," Gall says. "And the result, very soon, is a litter of rats. Which the owners then proceed to distribute among any friends who might want rats as pets."

"That's why I wouldn't even attempt to estimate how many pet rats there are in Marin."

Gall says the rats are sold to persons of all ages—adults as well as children.

"But quite frequently our sales are made to children who are studying biology or some of the other sciences in school and want to use them

Domestic White Rats Find Favor In Many Marin Homes

Science and medical laboratories have always been the major market for the rats, mice and guinea pigs.

THERE IS ONE other group which buys a sizeable number of white rats and mice, but which is none-too-popular with rodent fanciers. They are the owners of pet snakes. They frequently also raise rats and mice—as food for their snakes.

Gall, since he deals in all pets, has to remain neutral on the question. But he admits that snake owners "do have a considerable problem in obtaining the proper food for their pets."

Most white rats and mice that leave his store, however, are headed for happier fates.

They are going to be the petted and pampered pets of some little boy or girl. And even mother will probably get accustomed to, if never fond of, them.

HERE'S THE OTHER SIDE of that cover picture of Sam perched atop Carol Johnson's head. And Sam's tail seems to be tickling Carol's forehead, causing her to smile and admonish her pet.

EVEN MOTHERS can become accustomed to, or even fond of, the white rats. Mrs. M. H. Johnson admits that at first she was leery of Sam. But here she shows how she now handles him with aplomb.

TO CONVERT the written word into Braille, students in the College of Marin workshop for transcribers punch out, from right to left, dot formations which correspond to letters and word contractions. Tools include a blunt awl and a metal "slate." Here Mrs. Patrick Flynn of San Rafael completes an exercise.

So That Blind Children May Read

College Of Marin Workshop Program Is Training Braille Transcribers

A soft-spoken, doggedly-determined woman sat with the dean of College of Marin's adult school last year and told a story of how blind school children in Marin, hungry for out-of-class reading materials, have virtually no Braille books available to them.

She said she would like to teach others to help produce these needed books.

THE HEAD OF the adult school not only listened, but decided to do something about it. The result was an evening class started in February, 1962, and appropriately called "a workshop for Braille transcribers."

The woman is Miss Laura Bosworth, a field worker with the Marin County schools of office who spends her day helping blind children at six elementary and one public high school in Marin.

"We call the course a workshop because right from the beginning the stress is on doing," says Miss Bosworth. "You see, the state supplies Braille textbooks for the children, but does not provide necessary workbooks and other supplementary materials. Only a small supply of general reading materials is available through the state library, and the waiting list to get these is so terribly long."

Purpose of the workshop class is to train adults willing to contribute their time to the production of workbooks and general readers not available in the schools or public library.

TODAY NINE women meet at the Kentfield campus every Thursday evening for three hours to learn the detailed and arduous art of transcribing the written word into Braille.

If you happened to drop in on one of these classes, you would find the group "writing" with the aid of a blunt awl which is punched through a metal "slate" about twice the width of a standard ruler. On the face of the slate is the Braille alphabet, an arrangement of six-dot formations which correspond to letters, numbers and word contractions. The class also has one Braille writer, a six-key "typewriter" worth about $100 and the personal property of Miss Bosworth.

"The Braille writer is, of course, faster than the slate and stylus method, but it is too expensive for the student, at least until he or she is well trained."

Students pay no fees for the course, but do spend $2.75 for the slate and stylus, and must buy their own Braille paper. The cost of the student's instructional manual, as well as proofreading and binding of finished manuscripts, is borne by the Library of Congress, supporting agency for volunteer Braille workshops across the country since 1943.

IT TAKES THE average student at least a year to learn the skill sufficiently, if she attends class once a week and practices at least an hour a day. There is no shortcut, and when the students are well trained, they will receive no money for their work.

Whatever their reasons for enrolling in the class, they are being trained to volunteer to help children in the sightless world to "see."

Learning to transcribe Braille is like learning a foreign language, Miss Bosworth feels. Her approach is similar to modern language instruction, where conversation, rather than grammar, is stressed first.

"The students start out with a small group of symbols, and drill with them intensively. We leave the rules alone until the student has a fair working knowledge of the symbols."

And, like learning a language, practice out of class is essential. "You can't expect to learn Braille by coming to class once a week," says Miss Bosworth. "You've got to spend at least an hour a day in home practice."

HOW FAST CAN a good transcriber work?

"It takes me about 10 minutes to an average book page, and I'm considered a fast transcriber," Miss Bosworth replies.

The amount of paper used in transcribing any reading material is astounding.

"I carry a vest pocket dictionary about half an inch thick," says Miss Bosworth. "The Braille version of this little book would be about seven volumes, each three inches thick. Apart from our need for volunteers, paper is now our biggest problem because the volunteer must pay it out of her own pocket. We're looking for someone to sponsor paper for our group, but frankly I don't know where to start."

A former school teacher and physical therapist who wanted "to do something worthwhile after I retired," Miss Bosworth learned of the existence of a Braille workshop in Oakland and enrolled in the course. A year ago she was employed by the county schools office to work with public school teachers in setting up supplementary exercises for the totally blind.

"It really goes beyond this, however," she says. "Blind children have discipline and behavior problems like anyone else. There is also the question of teacher understanding of the particular learning problems of the blind child. One result of having a blind child in the classroom is that the teacher is forced to become more verbal."

MISS BOSWORTH admits that this movement to provide more Braille reading materials is an uphill struggle. A strong-willed woman who doesn't discourage easily, she has a great deal of hope in the future.

"There is one volunteer from Kentfield who has been helping me, and one of my students from the workshop class will be ready to do field work next month," she reports.

"One of our class just completed her first project, a Braille version of 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," she adds. "If you could have seen how delighted the children were when they read the poem, you would really understand the desperate need for volunteer transcribers."

BRAILLE WORKSHOP students at the College of Marin may use, in transcribing, this special "typewriter" shown above, instead of the stylus and slate. But the Braille writer requires advanced training for operation. Here Mrs. Joan Giragi of San Rafael drills in words and abbreviations. (Photos by Tom Tognetti)

THE STEREO SCENE

Some Music Served Flaming

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, FM & Cultural Guide
Some classics on the fiery side:

FRANZ LISZT: Dante Symphony—The Budapest Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Gyorgy Lehel—Westminster Stereo WST-14152.

A musical tour of the fiery Inferno of Dante's book, not to mention the more tranquil territory of Purgatory.

This giant and rarely-performed tone poem-symphony shows the amazing scope of Liszt's orchestral writing. Such music had considerable influence on later composers such as Tchaikovsky and Richard Strauss.

Arts And Entertainment

Following the first two-sections of this work already mentioned, soprano Margit Laszlo is heard with the Budapest Radio Choir in the final section, "Magnificat." This section created a new image of the celestial in music which has been imitated ever since.

Very good stereo spread is a feature of the disc.

PROKOFIEFF: Symphony No. 3 (1928), Lieutenant Kije Suite—USSR State Symphony conducted by Gennady Rozhdestvensky and Nikolai Anosov—Artia Stereo ALPS-191.

The symphony is based on dramatic situations in Prokofiev's opera, "The Flaming Angel," concerning an angel in love with a mortal girl. The work is a musical document of suffering, full of biting sounds.

The Kije Suite is very well known and a delightful bit of Prokofiev. Both works are performed ably—the way we would expect Soviet music to be performed by Soviet musicians.

WITH ALL THE DIGNITY befitting a television star, Champion Bundocks Rover Run Concerto posed for a publicity picture between takes of his film, "Little Dog Lost," for "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color." The Corgi's parents were both bred by the Walter Simonds of San Rafael.

A New Television Star With Ancestry In Marin

A Pembroke Welsh Corgi with Marin ancestry is the latest addition to the list of canine motion picture and television stars.

American-Canadian Champion Bundocks Rover Run Concerto will star as Candy in "Little Dog Lost," to be shown tomorrow night on the "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" show.

The Disney show is seen Sundays at 7:30 p.m. on KRON-TV.

CONCERTO IS owned and trained by Douglas Bundock, Sebastopol Corgi breeder and dog handler who was the technical adviser for the new Disney film and handled all the dogs in the cast.

Concerto was bred by Bundock.

The sire, Champion Rover Run Red Fox, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Simonds of San Rafael. And Mrs. Simonds also bred Concerto's dam, American-Canadian Champion Bundocks Mellow de Rover Run—one of the few dogs of any breed to hold the top conformation and obedience titles in both the U.S. and Canada.

"Little Dog Lost," based upon the book, "Hurry Home, Candy," by Meindert DeJong, was filmed by Perkins Films Inc. of West Los Angeles for Disney in various Sonoma County locations. Walter B. Perkins directed.

It is the story of a young Corgi who becomes lost on a family outing, and who then endures a number of frightening adventures.

Candy, as a baby puppy, is played by Cote de Neige Candytuft, now owned by William C. Woolston of Kentfield, giving the film still another "Marin angle."

THEN, TOO, there is the Chesapeake Bay Retriever Sasnakra which has a role in the show. Sasnakra is owned by Mrs. Walter Heller of Sonoma, formerly of San Rafael. Mrs. Heller, a well-known dog show exhibitor, has written a book on the Chesapeake retriever breed.

Playing a "neighbor dog" in the film is a Shetland Sheepdog, Autumn Silver-smith, owned by Gayle Fitzgerald of San Francisco.

The "villains," a pack of dogs, include sheep dogs and hounds owned by Wayne Foster, Ukiah, and two Brittany Spaniels, Star Omion, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Glazier, Petaluma, and Pete's Rock 'n Rye of Duval, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Barsuglia, Santa Rosa.

Among the human actors are Hollis Black and Dennis Yanglin of Cloverdale; Norman Williams and Priscilla Overton of Santa Rosa, and Mrs. Frank Loverde, Berkeley.

Hemingway & Fitzgerald By A Man Who Understood Them

By DON KEOWN

"Fascinating" is an adjective too frequently used in book reviews when a simpler "interesting" would be more accurate. Yet "fascinating" seems to us to be the exact word for Morley Callaghan's extraordinary "That Summer in Paris."

Callaghan takes his readers back to the summer of 1929 and to Paris, undisputed literary capital of the world and temporary home of America's finest writers.

There Callaghan, himself a literary prodigy of the time, and his young bride spent the months before the big crash, which was to end a colorful way of life, with their celebrated friends, Ernest Hemingway and Scott Fitzgerald, those two great talents who were so utterly unlike.

There are other formidable names which figure in this book—Sinclair Lewis, James Joyce, Sherwood Anderson, Robert McAlmon, Maxwell Perkins, Ford Madox Ford, Ezra Pound, Joan Miro. But primarily this is the story of Callaghan's tangled relationships with Hemingway and Fitzgerald—and their involvement with each other. In relating that story, Callaghan tells more about the characters of Hemingway and Fitzgerald than can be learned from all the previously-published biographies, interviews, profiles, etc.

The Hemingway that Callaghan reveals, for instance, is such a very human person that he makes the one-dimensional Ernest which emerged from brother Leicester Hem-

SLOAN WILSON
The struggle for maturity

ingway's biography appear a cardboard figure. The overly-idolized, myth-making Hemingway is cast aside. And the true man, an exciting mixture of the very simple and the very complex, is exposed. In much the same way, Callaghan ignores the over-romanticized version of the tragic Fitzgerald.

It is not that Callaghan knew the Hemingway and Fitzgerald of this key period better than the others who have written about them. Rather, it is that he was a more perceptive, more sensitive observer—more in tune with their genius.

The book is nostalgic, but not cloyingly sentimental. It is a frank and piercing analysis of these gifted men as they were in 1929, but it is not unnecessarily cruel. It has fine moments of humor, genuine sympathy for its principals. And it is a revealing portrait study of a gaudy era that was dying, and of the city that was the heart of that era.

One worthwhile by-product of this fine book should be a further resurgence of interest in Callaghan's own work. After being a sensation in his 20s, he became the virtually-forgotten man of North American literature. Recently his novels have reawakened, to some extent, public awareness of his skill, although it is as a master short story writer that he is best known. The writing in "That Summer in Paris" is added proof of his remarkable ability to use the English language as a sharp-honed tool in translating thoughts and situations with an economy of words and with disdain for semantic trickery and adornment.

THE MALAISE of immaturity is the concern of Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," in his newest novel, "Georgie Winthrop."

As his unlikely subject, struggling for inner maturity, Wilson has chosen a middle-aged college administrator.

The crucial test comes as the educator faces a choice between the life which he has built, but has not really understood or accepted, and the teen-age girl with whom he is having an affair.

Wilson is only partially successful with the novel.

He succeeds sufficiently to hold the reader's attention and interest. But it is only a mild, detached interest. It is difficult for the reader to work up a really deep involvement in the affairs and problems of Georgie Winthrop. The Winthrop that Wilson presents just doesn't seem to be of sufficient stature to merit any great concern.

The theme and storyline of the novel being what they are, the book will, nevertheless, very likely enjoy a sizeable sale.

DOUBLEDAY'S selection of Shelley Smith's "The Cellar at No. 5" for reprinting in its Dolphin Mystery series was an inspired choice.

The story combines the elements of the inverted mystery, the suspense tale and the psychological thriller, and is a rare example of excellence, indeed brilliance, in all three fields.

It is all about two strange, yet completely credible, women who live together, and whose conflicting personalities move them inexorably closer and closer to terrible violence. The whole thing is presented in an atmosphere that is eerie, yet entirely believable. And there is a strong seasoning of humor and irony.

If you missed this the first time around, when it was published by Harper, don't flub this second opportunity to savor a really fine piece of escapist reading.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Series Offers Meatier
Texts For The Youngsters

For parents outraged by the high prices and sparse contents of many children's books, the Crowell-Collier series—"Modern Masters Books For Children"—continues to offer a considerable measure of consolation.

These sturdily-bound books, reasonably priced at $1.95, team top writers and illustrators who hew to the belief that the best way to write for children is to write about children.

Although there is a black and white illustration on every page, and excellent they are, there is also a considerably meatier text than is found in most books written for this age group.

Three newest additions to the Modern Masters series are: "The Wish-Tree" written by John Ciardi and illustrated by Louis S. Glanzman, "What Did I See" by William Jay Smith and Don Almquist, and "Puppy Pie" by Jay Williams and Wayne Blickenstaff.

All are ideally suited to the age group which has just mastered the skill of reading for themselves. But they are also appropriate for the smaller ones who must still be read to, but who are old enough to follow an imaginative but simple story line.

"Puppy Pie" about Jennie, who likes apple pie and who has a puppy named Sam, is especially recommended for little girls. On the other hand, Ciardi's "The Wish-Tree" is about a little boy. It also features a loveable pup. "What Did I See" is fine for either boys or girls and is probably the best of the three for the non-readers, since it is heavier on pictures, lighter on text, and spotlights a bevy of delightful animals.

Take Care Of Those Holiday Plants

So some one gave you a poinsettia for Christmas. Are you letting it fade away or are you tending it carefully so that it will bloom again on another holiday?

We wouldn't say it is easy to get more than one year's pleasure from the same poinsettia but it's fun and no tedious task trying.

The blooming poinsettia should be protected from drafts and kept in a temperature of about 70 degrees in the daytime and about 65 at night. The best place to keep it is a sunny window.

Keep the soil moist, but not soaked. Insufficient water will cause the leaves to drop off.

The bright red (or white or pink) blooms will last longer if the plant has considerable light at this stage.

Following the blooming period, and when the leaves begin to wilt and drop, reduce watering until the leaves are gone. The dormant plant should be stored in a cool, dry place. In early spring, cut the stems to three or four bud swellings (six inches) on the stalks and resume watering.

When danger of frost has ended, sink the plant in the garden, pot and all, in a sunny spot. Keep it well watered, pinching it back to prevent legginess.

Bring the plant indoors before fall frost. Through the fall months, limit the light to 10 hours a day. Keep the plant in a closet part of the time if there is no other way to limit the light. Too much light will spur leaf growth and height but you probably won't get flowers.

Light control is the major problem of second-year growth.

CHRISTMAS CYCLAMEN should be kept in a night

Marin Living

temperature of 50 degrees. Warmth and poor light yellow the leaves and kill the buds. Water when the surface is dry and keep water from the crown of the plant. You may get three months of flowering.

Some gardeners dry the plant, store the bulbous root and take the plant outdoors in late spring.

KALANCHOE reacts to light as does the poinsettia. Not many householders try to nurse the plant past the first year. They generally start new ones from root cuttings.

CHRISTMAS PEPPER and Jerusalem cherry should be kept at 55 degrees at night to retain the fruit longer. They want full sunlight in the day and leaf-syringing almost daily.

Our advice is to toss them out when the fruit is gone and the leaves wilt, and leave propagation to the professionals.

CHRISTMAS BEGONIA should be kept well-watered and in a cool, sunny window and you'll get blooms as long as there are buds. This one is difficult to treat as more than a one-year item.

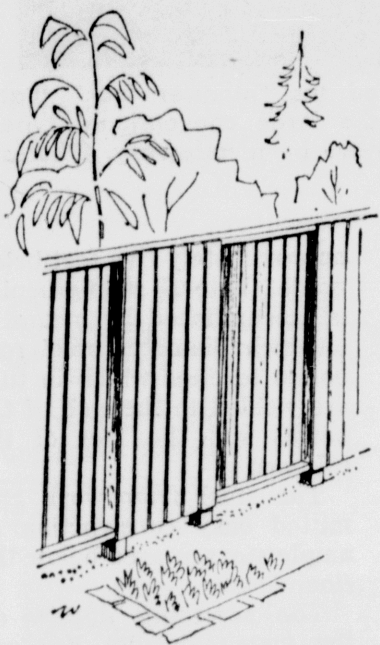

POTTED CHRYSANTHEMUM will give you bright flowers a long time.

Some of the house plant varieties are not hardy enough to winter outdoors, but you could cut the faded flowers off, keep the plant growing indoors, sink the pot outdoors in the spring and bring it in again in October. From then you should shade it from light from sundown to 8 a.m.

CHRISTMAS CACTUS should not be over-watered. If the buds begin to drop, make sure the plant does not need repotting; that the temperature is not too high (maximum 75) or that it is getting enough light.

This plant should be set outside in light shade in the warm months.

THIS ATTRACTIVE variation of the board fence is ideal for a long, fast estate fence. In alternating panels of the fence, one-by-four western red cedar boards are nailed on the front or back of the fence frame. The pattern produces a three-dimensional effect and good shadow lines. A book on how to build fences of many styles can be obtained by writing Fence Book, Department PR, West Coast Lumberman's Assn., 1410 S. W. Morrison Street, Portland 5, Ore.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✓ Plant annuals such as stocks, snapdragon, calendula, cineraria for spring bloom.
- ✓ Plant flat-grown perennials for spring and summer bloom. Give them a good start by preparing the soil well before planting.
- ✓ Plant camellias and azaleas for immediate bloom. Plant rhododendrons for later spring bloom.
- ✓ Roses may be pruned this month, but wait until February to prune fuchsias. Also prune deciduous fruit trees.
- ✓ Stay off lawns during rainy spells, but keep the grass mowed and fertilized.

The Right Timing Is Important If The Gardener Is To Succeed

One of the most important things for any gardener is learning to do the right thing at the right time.

As he gains experience, he knows that annuals planted in late summer will give him winter color; that bulbs planted in fall will start blooming in late winter and that perennials set out now will start yielding color before summer arrives.

But planting for color is not the whole aim of garden activity. There are various mechanical jobs that have to be done if the garden is to look and produce its best; and unless these jobs are done on schedule, there is no great advantage to be gained from them.

During winter months — from mid-December until March—spraying and pruning are two of the more important activities, especially with dormant trees and shrubs. This is most important for deciduous fruit trees such as peaches, apples, pears and apricots. But it applies generally to ornamental gardening also, especially in regards to spraying.

THE IDEA behind winter spraying is that there are many insects and fungus spores which are overwintering—in the egg stage as well in the adult stage. Four of the primary targets in this respect are scale, spider mites, aphids and mealy bugs. The fungus which causes leaf curl on peaches is another winter target, as are the overwintering fungus sports of mildew and rust which infected our roses last year.

By hitting these bothersome pests when trees and shrubs are dormant—i.e. leafless—the gardener can make great strides toward controlling them if not actually knocking them altogether. For being leafless, the plant material is not harmed by stronger-than-normal concentrations of spray, and the stronger the spray, the more effective it is against insects and fungus.

Evergreen material will benefit by spraying, too. But more dilute solutions will be needed or the plants themselves may be harmed. Even at dilute strength, however, headway is made in the battle of the bugs and chances for infestation next spring or summer are greatly decreased.

You can check with a nurseryman about the most effective sprays for dormant use.

THE MOST widely used for insect control are the oil sprays, which form a coating over insects and their eggs, suffocating them. This is usually mixed with a fungicide of the lime-sulphur type to control fungus at the same time. Don't guess at the mixtures you use, nor at the type of plant you use this combination on. Ask your nurseryman and also read the label directions before spraying to refresh your memory.

Needless to say, choose a windless day to spray and avoid contact with the spray itself.

As for pruning, we prune in winter to control the growth and fruit production of orchard trees or to control growth and bloom on certain ornamental shrubs, such as roses and fuchsias, which bear their blooms on the new growth which will be made next spring and summer.

On spring-blooming shrubs such as lilac, weigela and various others, pruning must wait until after bloom. These bloom on last year's wood and pruning now will only rob you of color when spring arrives.

There is no more important action affecting the health and cropping ability of fruit trees and grapes than pruning. The gardener is strongly urged not to set about this job in a haphazard manner, but first to read about what he is doing.

IN THE ROSE garden, instructions are somewhat easier to give in limited space.

Remember that the idea is to renew the bush and to encourage new bloom-carrying growth. You can cut back one-third to one-half of a rose, keeping an eye to the shaping of the bush as you do it.

Try to encourage at least one well-placed new cane which came up from the base last year and to cut out one old one entirely. This is sometimes not possible.

Remove all dead wood and weak growth, cutting just above a bud on the slant. And go more lightly on vigorous shrubs than on the weaker ones.

He Builds With Steel

Steep Sites
Don't Stop
Frank Bugaj

Frank Bugaj, a successful Marin County speculative builder, has found how to build a profitable dwelling on a precipitous, "unbuildable" lot. He uses exposed structural steel for his substructure supporting members.

Why? Bugaj puts it this way:

"As a speculative builder I have to get maximum value from each hillside lot, and one way I can do this is to give the buyer the feeling of independence and detachment that elevation provides. I have found the only way I can get the elevation I need is to use steel in the substructure.

"STEEL LETS me come out with a profit—a profit I could not make with wood because considerably more money would have to go into foundation work. Steel gives me the elevation and the view I need, it permits my buildings to have a lighter, cleaner and more attractive design, and it enables me to put into the dwelling money that otherwise would go into a conventional type foundation."

Bugaj specializes in duplexes, and has built some 20 of these in the Sausalito

STRENGTH, ECONOMY, elevation and attractive design are all plus factors to be found in these two Frank Bugaj-built duplexes on Cazneau Avenue in Sausalito. Bugaj says that by using steel instead of wood for his superstructure supporting members, he avoided the "monster look" that would have resulted from the large conventional type of foundation which would have been necessary. (Photos by Bethlehem Steel) area in the past 10 years. He started using steel approximately two years ago and since then has put up seven buildings.

Outstanding examples of economy, elevation and attractive design on odd-shaped lots can be seen in two duplexes he completed this year on Cazneau Avenue in Sausalito. One is built on a lot shaped like a trapezoid, the other like a triangle.

Had he used wood for supporting columns on the latter lot, Bugaj feels his building would have looked like a "monster" perched on the hillside, his foundation cost would have been three times what it was with steel, and he would have been unable to get the elevation desired.

approximately five feet below grade. Lateral strengthening is accomplished by means of one-inch diameter steel rods bolted to clips which in turn are welded to the web of the beams and the feet of the columns.

The steel framework permitted easy construction of ample storage area below the floor level.

The adjoining duplex on the trapezoidal lot has one bedroom, a living room, dining room, one bath and fireplace on the first floor, with two bedrooms, two baths, living-dining room and fireplace on the second floor.

THE BUILDING is 40 feet across the back, 23 feet along one side, 45 feet along the other and 62 feet across the front.

It is supported by three parallel steel beams, two 12 inches deep weighing 27 pounds per foot and one 10 inches deep weighing 21 pounds per foot. These are welded to five-inch square tubular steel columns on the downhill side and 8WF17 columns located a distance of 22 feet back toward the uphill side.

As with the duplex on the triangular lot, all steel col-

HERE IS A VIEW from the underside of the Frank Bugaj-built duplex on the triangular-shaped lot on Sausalito's Cazneau Avenue. Note the clean, column-free area underneath the building which results from the use of structural steel to support the substructure. Bugaj is a specialist in the construction of such duplexes.

THIS CLOSE-UP VIEW shows the welded connection between column and beam in the substructure of the Cazneau Avenue duplexes. Note how the end of one of the three-quarter-inch diameter steel rods used for bracing is threaded into a clevis which, in turn, is fastened to a clip welded to the underside of the beam flange.

Steel Helps Builder Overcome Sausalito Site Problems

umns are bolted to concrete piers extending approximately five feet below grade. Lateral bracing is accomplished with three-quarter-inch diameter steel rods.

Steel for the two Cazneau

Avenue jobs was fabricated by Schrader Iron Works of San Francisco. The buildings were designed by William H.

V. Brooke of Belvedere, with Arthur Lang of Sausalito serving as the structural engineer.

Bugaj now has under construction—on steep “unbuildable” lots along Sausalito Boulevard—the first of three more duplexes. Here he is employing an inverted A-frame design for his substructure supporting members.

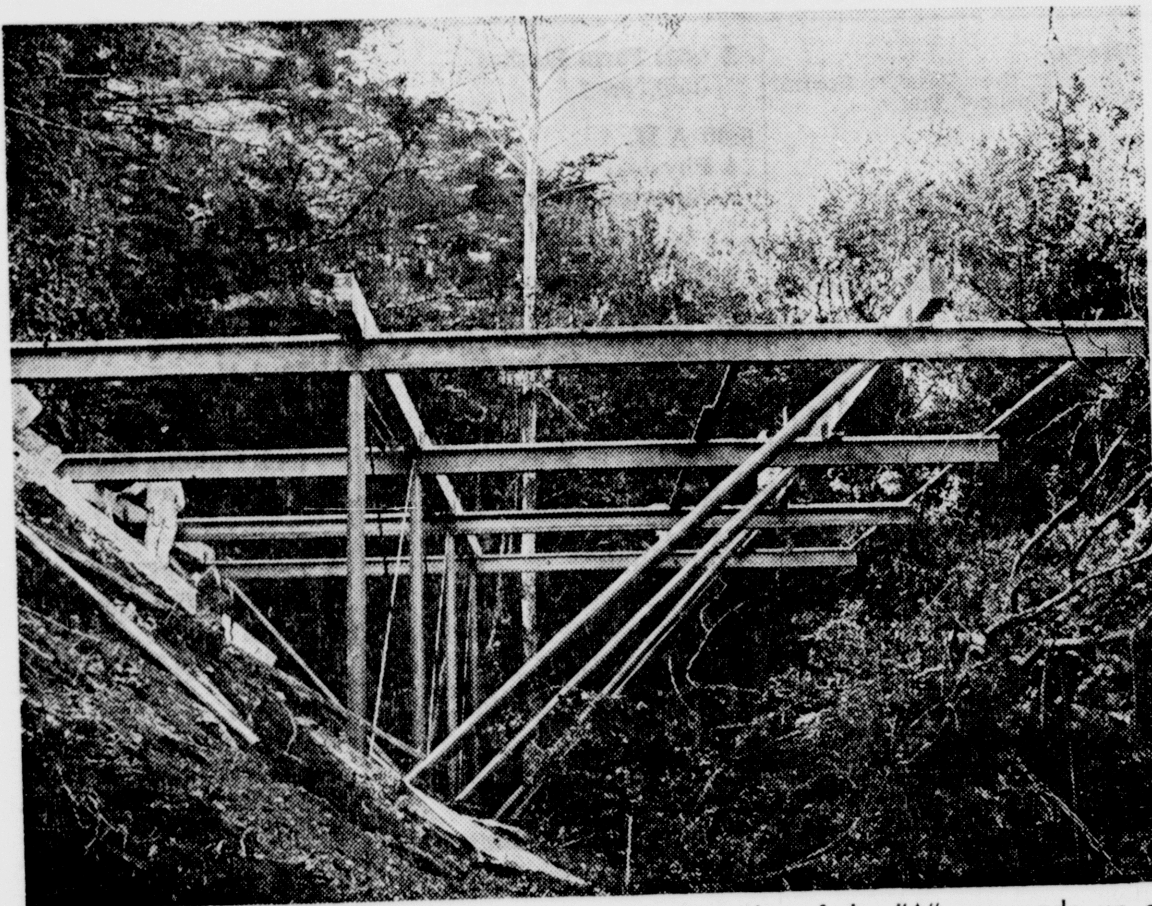

The sloping sides of the “A” are made up of six-inch diameter standard steel pipe welded to a 36-foot long wide flange beam 10 inches deep weighing 21 pounds per foot. The point of the “A” is bolted to a four-foot square reinforced concrete pier that extends 11 feet below grade.

THERE ARE four such frames in the substructure, 12 feet apart.

Bugaj pointed out that the inverted A-frame assembly, his own design, eliminates piers and reduces material and labor costs. He added that he gets the same structural results with his A-frame as with the conventional column-and-beam method.

The frames were fabricated by Victor's Iron Works of San Rafael, which first laid them out in the shop. They were welded at the job site. The platform they support has an area of 1,296 square feet.

THE FIRST OF THREE new duplexes Frank Bugaj is building on Sausalito Boulevard in Sausalito is being constructed on this inverted A-frame substructure support. The sloping sides of the “A” are made up of six-inch diameter standard steel pipes, welded to a 36-foot long wide flange beam 10 inches deep.

“Realty Ramblings”

A lady dropped in to my office the other day and placed her house with me to sell for her. She admitted that she had been delaying for quite a while because she was hesitating to pay me a fee for handling the sale of what she correctly described as a very salable piece of property.

I explained to her all of the work involved in connection with the various instruments associated with the transfer of property, and, the time and expense involved in the maintenance of records that will turn up a suitable buyer and the actual time spent with both the prospective buyer and the seller.

But just as much importance should be placed on the fact that a reliable realtor should be consulted just as one consults a lawyer in matters of law, or a physician in matters of health. By years of study and practice, these men are equipped to advise and administer in problems peculiar to their chosen field. So, also, is the reliable realtor equipped to aid in matters involving transfer of property and, moreover, to do so with the same ethical treatment as far as private confidences are concerned.

Like the Doctor or Lawyer, the Realtor is remunerated for the use of knowledge available only to those qualified by years of training and experience, as well as for the actual amount of work performed to round out his services to a satisfactory conclusion. Think it over—It really makes sense—doesn't it? Or, better yet, drop in and let's talk it over.

center, Hope, on one of his 11 annual overseas Christmas tours, entertains American servicemen. And at bottom, Lana Turner, one of his guests on this year's Christmas special, typifies the many glamorous stars who have accompanied Hope on his treks to entertain and cheer GIs.
